It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Commencing Thursday, January 9, 1919

Regular Session

INDIANAPOLIS:

WM. B. BURFORD, CONTRACTOR FOR STATE PRINTING AND BINDING

State Senate of Indiana

THURSDAY MORNING.

January 9, 1919.

The Senators holding over and the Senators-elect of the State of Indiana met in the Senate Chamber in the State Capitol on January 9, 1919, at 10 o'clock a. m., this being the time fixed by the Constitution of the State of Indiana for the convening of the same, viz.: "Commencing on the Thursday after the first Monday of January of every second year after the adoption of the Constitution in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three."

Lieutenant-Governor Edgar D. Bush, President of the Senate, called the Senate to order.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Loudon A. Harriman of Indianapolis.

Lieutenant-Governor Edgar D. Bush addressed the Senate as follows:

Gentlemen of the Senate—Two years ago from this rostrum, I experienced the profound pleasure of appearing before the Senate and receiving the oath to support the Constitution of the State of Indiana. On that occasion, I congratulated the State on the splendid personnel of the Senate. When I look into your faces today, I see no reason for a change of opinion—on the contrary, added cause for congratulation and felicitation.

It is not my duty to recommend legislation. I forfeit no right, however, as your presiding officer, to express my opinion on any subject. Loyalty to my party demands fair and impartial treatment, on my part, of platform measures. In fact all proposed legislation should receive such treatment. I am untrue to my oath of office, however, if I fail to exert every constitutional power at my command to protect the rights, prerogatives and dignity of this Senate. As your sworn administrative officer, I am mindful of the fact that I can not comply with my obligation to you and the State of Indiana without recognizing this Senate to be a creature of the Constitution. No human agency has any right to alter or amend in the least, the prerogative of this Senate, save through the duly constituted and only possible way—by amendment to the Constitution.

VOICE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

You are here, Senators, in response to the mandate of the men who met down in Corydon more than a century ago. No living voice called you into session. The framers of our Constitution are stilled in death, but the Constitution's voice still lives in the hearts of those who cherish the fountain source of our greatness.

You are here, Senators, as the rep-representatives of an intelligent electorate, and you have been sent here for the purpose of giving expression by voice and by vote, to your formulated opinions on matters of legislation.

The makers of our Constitution never intended a session of the General Assembly to be a ratification meeting, but rather a constructive body, clothed with the sole authority to enact legislation in behalf of the people.

The German imperial government under the late infamous military regime had a bundesrat and a reichstag, in outward form, corresponding to our Senate and House respectively. And yet the German people are strangers to real liberty. A thirst for power by those intrusted with authority, withheld from the people their rightful functions. Dynasties are crumbling and there is today a serious disposition on the part of liberated nations to zealously guard their freedom.

PERIL OF ENCROACHMENT.

Some of our sister States have awakened recently to the peril of encroachment. The people of the north and west have expressed in positive terms their determination to safeguard the principle of the people's right to retain the power to initiate government.

Within the last thirty days, meetings have been held in Michigan and Illinois by representatives of the local communities for the purpose of safeguarding the principles of local self-government, and the people of those States are now moving upon the legislature with the demand that their representatives take steps making it possible to write into their constitutions provisions that will safeguard their inherent rights from further encroachment.

I am sure there is no man in this assembly who does not cherish our exalted institution of government. There are none so dull in sentiments of citizenship and patriotism. From the Magna Charta to the American Constitution, serious-minded men engaged themselves with the still more serious problem of working out a system of government which would secure for all time the greatest possible measure of liberty. The efforts of our forebears have been consecrated with the best blood that ever gushed through human heart.

Our governmental system, the great American system, the pride of every patriotic heart, the beacon light of the oppressed of all lands—yea, more, the hope of the generations still nestling in the womb of Time, is unique in its three co-ordinate branches, the legislative, the judicial, and the executive. The legislative, which has to do with the making of laws, the judicial, which has to do with the interpretation of laws, and the executive, which has to do with the administration of laws.

CHECKS AND BALANCES.

This system of government by checks and balances was long viewed with suspicion and disfavor, but the records and battle-scarred flags in our State House abundantly attest the willingness of the great American heart to protect the real bulwark of our liberty from internal dissensions and the disposition of one department to encroach upon the other.

The spirit of encroachment, with its natural tendency to centralize and consolidate the powers of all departments in one, must inevitably result in despotism.

The seemingly beneficial results, if any, are only transitory and can in no measure compensate for a breach once made in the solid wall of our security; for, through the breach, the tyrant may enter as well as the benefactor.

Gentlemen of the Senate, you are here as representatives of all the people in your respective districts, regardless of party affiliations, and you are responsible to your various constituencies in their entirety. We are mutually interested in lessening our burdens and administering to the happiness and comfort of all. An economic administration of the people's affairs is as essential as a just and equitable one. Centralization of power under the mantle of economy and efficiency should never be permitted, at the price of encroachment, upon our well-established fundamentals of government, which for a century and a half has been the bulwark of our people's safety.

CENTRALIZATION OF POWER.

There has been a decided tendency in recent years toward the centralization of governmental power. This disposition should be guarded with zealous attention, because of the inherent weakness of human nature and the natural temptation to abuse administrative privileges.

The delegation of power by the people or through their representatives to the chief executive of State or Nation in a crisis is justified only when the same power is returned to the people at the termination of the crisis. Any tendency to extend to an executive increased appointive power should be viewed with alarm, for the good reason that the appointee is responsive to the power which appoints and is not responsible to the people.

I love and cherish the principles of my party—the Republican party is dear to my heart. It has been blessed with great leaders who so thoroughly understood its missions to humanity that at no time has it faltered in administering to the happiness and elevation of mankind. As a Republican, I believe that liberty is a boon too dearly purchased to be surrendered for mere partisan advantage or personal aggrandizement. Is party love a passing sentiment to be traded for personal advantages?

Gentlemen of the Senate, in conclusion, I have spoken to you as the administrative officer of one of the three great co-ordinate branches of government, with no feeling other than a righteous interest in the welfare of our beloved State. I trust that this session of the legislature may redound to our everlasting credit and the imperishable glory of this great commonwealth, and that the legislation which we may enact will be wise and beneficent.

There is a higher duty devolving upon us than this our seemingly highest duty. Upon each of us rests the grave responsibility of seeing to it that there is no encroachment upon our sacred, fundamental principles of government, the overthrow of which would surely be humanity's loss.

The following named Senators, elected in 1916 for the constitutional term of four years, appeared and answered to their names: Beardsley, Bracken, Dobyns, Dorrell, Elsner, English, Erskine, Grant, Hagerty, Hudgins, Kolsem, Laney, McCray, McKinley, Metzger, Munton, Negley, Nejd, Retherford, Signs, Smith, Wolfson.

Lieutenant-Governor Edgar D. Bush ordered a roll call of Senators elected in 1918: Alldredge, Arnold, Bainum, Bowers, Brown, Cravens, Decker, Douglass, Duffey, Duncan, Furnas, Hepler, Hogston, Humphreys, Kiper, Kline, McConaha, McCullough, Maier, Masters, Meeker, Ratts, Self, Southworth, Strode, and Tague, and each presented his certificate of election.

The oath of office was administered by Judge L. M. Harvey of the Supreme Court.

Senator Cravens handed the following certificate of election:

Senator H. E. Negley, Indianapolis,
Ind.:

Dear Sir—The Caldwell-Cravens depositions did not reach this office until late yesterday evening. I could not get in touch with the Justices of the Peace until late this afternoon, when I secured their signatures. I cannot understand why the depositions have been held up so long. As to the papers and ballots in the recount case, I can not find any law that requires me to send them and I shall keep them in my custody until a final disposition is made by order of the court. I am

THOMAS A. COOPER.

MEMORIAL.

RISING SUN, IND., January 6, 1919.

To the President and members of the Senate of the State of Indiana, and the Election Committee thereof:

Greeting—I have the honor to submit to your honorable body the following state of facts for your consideration and action thereon as may seem right in the premises:

Prior to December 10th, 1918, a contest has been filed by Erastus W. Caldwell against Joseph M. Cravens upon the validity of the count and return of the Board of Election Canvassers in Ohio County in the State of Indiana, of the respective number of votes received by each of said gentlemen in said Ohio County for the office of Joint Senator held in said county on the 5th day of November, 1918, and a recount had been ordered by the Honorable Judge of the Ohio Circuit Court to be held on the 9th day of December, 1918.

I was appointed by said Judge as a member of that recount commission to serve as a member affiliated with the Republican party, with which party the contestor was and is affiliated, and Messrs. George A. Woods and Ezra K. Cofield were appointed as members affiliated with the Democratic party, and with which the contestee was and is affiliated.

This recount commission met at Rising Sun, in Ohio County, on December 9th, as directed, and proceeded to re-canvass the votes cast for Joint Senator as directed, and the same was finished on the following day. Thereupon a report was prepared for the signature of the commission, showing that the said Erastus W. Caldwell received four hundred ninety (490) legal votes for Joint Senator in said county and that the said Joseph M. Cravens received six hundred and nineteen (619) legal votes for the same office in said county. This report was signed by the Democratic, or majority, members of the recount commission, and was then signed by me under a misapprehension of my position and rights in the premises consistent with my opinions expressed during the deliberations of said commission, and my protests against the action of the majority members of that commission in numerous instances.

And this is therefore to certify to your honorable body that in signing said report, as I did, I did not intend to appear as ratifying the action of the majority members of that commission in reporting on the total number of legal votes received by each of said contestants, as the same appears in said report; and to certify further, that I did in fact protest during the proceedings of said recount, against the actions of said majority members in refusing to count for said Erastus W. Caldwell approximately fifty-nine (59) ballots that were in my opinion legally cast for said candidate and should have been counted for him, and that I did in fact protest, during said recount proceedings, the action of said majority members of said commission in counting for said Joseph M. Cravens approximately seven (7) ballots that in my opinion were not legally cast for said candidate and should not have been counted for him. And that my written protest will in each instance be found inscribed on the back of each ballot above described as protested.

I therefore respectfully ask that your honorable body, or its Elections Committee in session send for and have brought before it all of the ballots cast in said Ohio County for the office of Joint Senator for the counties of Dearborn, Jefferson, Ohio and Switzerland counties, and there make due inspection of the same to the end that justice may be done between these contestants.

Respectfully submitted,

BENJAMIN H. SCRANTON,

Minority member of recount commission acting in the contest and recount ordered in Ohio County, Indiana, by the Hon. Warren N. Hauck, Judge of the Ohio Circuit Court, to be held on December 9th, 1918.

Nomination of President pro tem was now declared in order and Senators Edward Elsner and Harry Negley were placed in nomination. There being no further nominations, election was declared in order and Senator Harry Negley, receiving the highest number of votes, was declared elected.

Nominations being in order for Principal Secretary, Harry Styner was placed in nomination, and he being the only candidate, was declared elected by acclamation.

Nominations being in order for Assistant Secretary, Capt. William M. Loudon was placed in nomination. There being no other candidate, he was declared elected by acclamation.

Nominations for Principal Doorkeeper being in order, Jerome Brown was placed in nomination. There being no other candidate, he was declared elected by acclamation.

The officers-elect presented themselves at the bar of the Senate and were sworn to support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Indiana, and to perform the duties of their respective offices to the best of their abilities, by Judge Harvey of the Supreme Court.

The Senate and House met in joint session at 11:50 a.m. with Lieutenant-Governor Bush presiding.

Governor Goodrich delivered the following message:

Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

Events of importance unequaled in the world's history have transpired since a General Assembly of the State of Indiana has convened in this building. The war of Europe became a world war and has ended successfully for the free governments of the world, principally through the moral and material support of the United States of America. Autocracy has practically vanished from the face of the globe. The Russian Empire is no more. German junkerism has disappeared, let us hope forever, and in every land the people have felt the quickened pulse of liberty.

The General Assembly of 1917 opened with the United States at peace with the world. It ended its session with the gathering clouds of war, but even in those early days of March, few people realized that it would be necessary for the United States, not only to declare war on Germany, but to bring every national effort to bear to save the liberty of the world. But it was necessary, the people rose to the occasion, American rights and American honor were upheld and the theory of government of the people and for the people was vindicated on the battlefield for all time to come.

Happily, the abilities of the General Assembly of 1919 will be tested by problems of reconstruction instead of those of war. While these problems are national in scope, the legislative and executive departments can assist the State as well as the country as a whole by putting into effect such laws as will tend, as far as possible, to equalize the burdens of government. They are more acute now than ever before. There is before us the greatest opportunity for, and also as never before, the need of providing wise, efficient and economical government.

WAR RECORD OF THE STATE.

Never have we had more cause to be proud of our State. In every war activity, in raising troops, in organization, in production and in conservation, Indiana has stood foremost. Our men and women have not failed in any call.

Indiana's quota of volunteers for the regular army was placed at 5,400 by the war department, but the State gave to the service 25,148 volunteers, a record unequaled by any State in the Union, many of which have a much greater population than our own commonwealth. Our quota of volunteers to the navy was 800. Indiana, an inland State, furnished 5,516 men, a record greater than that of any State in the Union, based on population. In all branches of the service Indiana furnished approximately 130,000 men. The State raised and drilled an extra regiment of artillery, which was not accepted into national service, although willing and anxious to go, and thirty-eight companies of State militia. Two hundred companies of Liberty Guards were organized and ready for service at home if needed. To these men at home and to the patriotic spirit which animated our people, is due in large measure the fact that while many other States were disturbed by rioting and lynching, we have enjoyed peace, order and tranquility at home.

Our conscription department was recognized as one of the most efficient in the country. It was frequently complimented by the Provost-Marshal-General. It performed its work quickly and fairly.

WAR FOOD PRODUCTION.

In war food production, Indiana, too, has no equal. On April 5, 1917, a conference of food producers was called at the State House and several hundred men and women answered the call. The entire State entered into the spirit for wartime food production. Over 500,000 war gardens were planted. The corn acreage was increased by about 600,000 acres over 1916. About 524,000 more acres of wheat were sowed in the State in 1917 than the year before. The production of hogs and all of our food products was greatly increased. The same splendid co-operation with the Food Administration, the State Council of Defense and the State Veterinarian's office brought excellent results in the year 1918. The co-operation of the farmers of Indiana has, indeed, played an important part in the State's war activities.

As a war measure, Indiana greatly increased its output of coal. The increased production of the United States as a whole in 1917 was 10 per cent, but in Indiana it was 25 per cent, due to the co-operation of the operators, the miners and the railroads under the direction of the Indiana Public Service Commission.

I desire here, while on the subject of production, to pay my tribute to labor's splendid spirit of co-operation. The State was particularly free of strikes and disturbances. The workmen and women have done their best without complaint, in spite of the steadily mounting cost of living. When the final history of Indiana's achievements in the great war is written, labor will be given a generous share of the credit for the success we have achieved.

Organization of all the patriotic forces of Indiana was the foundation of our success in performing our share of the war duties and the success of organization was due to the splendid efforts of our State Council of Defense, under the leadership of Will H. Hays and Michael E. Foley, made up as it was of intelligent, patriotic citizens of all political parties and from all walks of life. The State should be ever grateful to these two chairmen of the Council, and to the patriotic Hoosiers who, as members of the Council, rendered such signal service to our State.

Working through county councils of defense and local patriotic organizations the State Council of Defense succeeded in organizing the elements of our state life so effectively that every war movement was assured of success.

WHO SHOULD GET THE CREDIT?

That this record is so satisfactory is not due to the efforts of any one man, or to any organization of men, political or otherwise. It is due to the spirit of our Americanism, the high patriotism, the natural intelligence and efficiency of the average Hoosier as a citizen of America. In our war activities no party lines, no religious creeds and no racial differences were recognized by those in authority in Indiana. Every man and every woman had a right to say what he thought. There was no discrimination because of politics, race or religion, against any man or woman who was seeking to render service to our country. The only test was that of patriotic service. In this State, every man was presumed to be a loyal American and a true Hoosier until he showed himself otherwise. There was no hatred and no persecution. The men and women of Indiana responded to the call, and to them belongs the credit for our success. The war is over. Much as we may glory in that which was accomplished by our State during the great struggle, we cannot resign ourselves to the contemplation of the things which have passed. We must face the future, and the big problem of the immediate future in our State, as well as in every other one of the commonwealths of our country, is the readjustment of our domestic affairs to a peace basis.

The transition from war to peace will not be accomplished without some confusion and some hardships. It is the duty of us all without prejudice, political or otherwise, to work as earnestly and as effectively in peace as we did in war.

It will be more difficult for us to bring these high qualities into play now that the crisis has passed and the tense excitement of battle and of preparation for the final great struggle is over.

It is necessary for us to be impressed with the fact that the task before us is just as important, just as patriotic, now that the enemy is defeated, as were the things we were called on to accomplish before the end of the war. The patriotism of peace calls as earnestly for service and sacrifice as did the patriotism of war.

A state conference was held in this room in November to consider the after-the-war problems. A survey of the industrial situation made after that conference clearly disclosed that the employment of the returning soldiers is not one of the serious questions to be dealt with.

ATTITUDE OF EMPLOYERS.

This survey revealed that the employers of labor in Indiana will give to the men, as they are mustered out, the positions held by them at the time they entered the service, or positions equally as desirable. There will be some unemployment during the readjustment period, owing to the cancellation of war orders and the stopping of work due to the war, but this in large measure will be offset by the opening up of new work in our State, and by the important part the nation must play in rehabilitating war-swept Europe, and in the development of our foreign commerce.

In Indiana we are unusually fortunate. In April, 1917, a campaign was started to suspend all public improvements. The result is that at least $40,000,000 of deferred public improvements are waiting authority to go forward. Private building enterprises were almost entirely suspended. We may look forward with confidence in 1919 as a year of general prosperity. Little reduction in the cost of living can be expected during the year. It is manifest that no reduction in wages can be anticipated, for, after all, the real measure of the daily wage is not the sum of money received, but its purchasing power. I am happy to say that the employers of Indiana at their meeting agreed to the policy of maintaining wages at the present level so long as it is possible for them to do so.

I am sure that we can face the future with confidence and with the assurance that our citizens will bring to the solution of the peace problems the same high purpose and unselfish patriotism that moved them in support of the war.

NEED OF TAX LAW REVISION.

Our tax laws have not been revised for more than a quarter of a century. Under our present system of taxation and administration, the grossest inequalities exist. In many cases their burdens fall heaviest on those least able to bear them.

Real estate now pays sixty-five per cent of our taxes. It is, under our present laws, to be reassessed this year. If no change is made, it is safe to say that, under the next assessment, it will pay at least 75 per cent. Simpler forms of property, the value of which is easily comprehended by the assessor, are assessed at a far higher relative value than the more complex forms of property. Intangible property, which comprises at least 50 per cent of our wealth, pays less than 5 per cent of our taxes.

Our tax laws should be amended so as to require the State Board of Tax Commissioners to devote their entire time to the work, with original and exclusive assessment jurisdiction over all public service corporations and a greater degree of supervision over local taxing authorities. The largest measure of classification possible under our Constitution should be provided for intangible property so that this form of wealth will be required to come out of hiding and contribute to the support of the State.

HIGHWAY LEGISLATION.

In the closing hours of the last General Assembly a state highway bill was passed by the General Assembly. The constitutionality of this law has been attacked and the case is now pending in the Supreme Court of the State.

Under the provisions of this law, a great deal of preliminary work has been done in the way of establishing state highways, making surveys and preparing specifications. The existing law is unsatisfactory to those who believe in the extension of the good roads system of our State, and I urge upon you the necessity of passing a comprehensive highway law vesting in the state highway authorities the absolute right to establish and build upon their own initiative the main market highways of the State.

The office of the State Geologist should be filled by a trained scientist; he should be appointed by the Governor, or by a Conservation Commission in the event one is created.

I therefore recommend that the office of State Geologist as an elective office be abolished; that a conservation commission, nonsalaried and bipartisan, be created; that it be given full power over the departments of geology, entomology, fish and game, forestry and parks and waters of the State. All of these departments require the service of trained men and their tenure of service should not be subject to the changing fortunes of political parties.

OFFICE OF STATISTICIAN.

The last General Assembly attempted, by a clause in the appropriation bill, to abolish the office of State Statistician. The Attorney-General held that they had only abolished the old office, in so far as the work of collecting statistics was concerned, and that the statistician was still superintendent of employment agencies. In order to set this question at rest, I recommend that the office of State Statistician be abolished; that the industrial board be authorized to license private employment agencies, and be authorized further, with the consent of the Governor, to co-operate with the federal employment agencies in the State. There is no need of duplication of service in this work and under an executive order we are now acting with the federal government in the operation of the free employment bureau of the State.

The present oil department should be abolished at the end of this fiscal year. The inspection of oils should be transferred to the food and drug department and a fee sufficient to cover fully the cost of inspection should be charged. The present system is admirably designed to provide many places for the party in power, but is perfect in its inefficiency, and the expense incident to the present method is an unnecessary burden that in the end must be borne by the consumer.

DEPARTMENTS OF BANKING AND INSURANCE.

The departments of banking and insurance are now attached to the auditor's office. These two departments are of sufficient importance to the people of the State to justify the creation of separate departments under charge of responsible heads to be appointed by the Governor. Under the present system, a complete reorganization of these two departments often results every two years by reason of the election of a new State Auditor.

I recommend that bills be passed, effective at the end of this fiscal year, creating separate departments of banking and insurance, the heads of which shall be appointed by the Governor. I intend no reflection on the present Auditor of State in making this recommendation. He has been a most faithful public official with a record of efficiency in the conduct of his office equaled by few and surpassed by none.

The office of State Veterinarian is filled by appointment by the Governor and in the past it has been the custom to change this department and its various employes with each changing administration. On assuming office, I appointed to the position of State Veterinarian Dr. L. E. Northup, who had been the chief deputy during the last two administrations and who previously was connected with the government service. He was given a free hand in reorganizing his department. His work has attracted nation-wide attention and contributed largely to the splendid record Indiana made in food production.

I believe this important department should be removed from partisan politics, placed upon a nonpartisan basis and the control placed in the hands of a bipartisan commission.

I recommend that the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners be abolished, that there be created in its place a Live Stock Sanitary Board composed of four members, to serve without salary, two of whom shall be veterinary surgeons, two to be live stock raisers, and not more than two of whom shall be members of any one political party.

I also recommend that this board be vested with all the powers of the present board of veterinary examiners, and in addition empowered to appoint the chief veterinarian and have general supervision of this important work.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The Supreme Court has held that a constitutional convention can be called only by a referendum to the people.

That our Constitution, adopted when we were an agricultural State, with no large cities, no longer meets the demands of our complex social, industrial and economic relations is evident.

Should the General Assembly submit the question of calling a convention to a vote of the people in 1920, no one can foresee the result of the referendum. Some changes in our Constitution are imperative.

Two years ago a constitutional amendment was passed providing for equal suffrage. If this amendment is approved by this General Assembly, then, under the provisions of our Constitution no other amendments can be considered until the pending amendment is disposed of. This would prevent any attempt to further amend the Constitution for four years and seriously impede the progress of our State. I, therefore, recommend that all pending proposals to amend the Constitution be rejected and the following amendments be approved by this General Assembly for reference to the General Assembly of 1921:

Providing for equal suffrage.

Limiting the right to vote and hold office to citizens of the State.

Abolishing the elective offices of State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Clerk of the Supreme Court.

Providing for the budget system and authorizing the Governor to veto any item in an appropriation bill.

Against increasing the salary of any official for the term of office for which he is elected.

Authorizing the General Assembly to classify counties for registration purposes so as to make unnecessary the registration of voters in the smaller counties of the State.

Giving the General Assembly larger power in dealing with the tax question and especially power to adopt an income tax and classify property for the purpose of taxation.

Simplifying the method of amending the Constitution so that after one General Assembly has passed an amendment it may be submitted directly to the people without passing another General Assembly.

In this connection, I call your attention to the discrimination against the colored people of Indiana in our state Constitution. Under the provisions of the Constitution, men of the colored race are not permitted to become members of the Indiana State Militia or National Guard. In every war in this country, since the days of the revolution, negro soldiers have fought side by side with their white comrades for the cause of America. In the great struggle which has just been ended, we have heard of the gallantry of the colored boys who fought with their white brothers upon the battlefields of Europe. It is unfair to them and not consistent with the spirit of the times that the word "white" remains in our Constitution. In justice to them, and as a tribute to their loyalty and spirit of sacrifice, I recommend that a joint resolution be passed, submitting an amendment striking the word "white" from our Constitution.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The office of Attorney-General was created by the legislature and its statutes may be changed at any time by the legislature. The office was made elective at a time when the administrative functions of state government were comparatively limited and its instrumentalities few in number. With the growth in complexity of our society, the functions of state government have broadened and the instrumentalities by which these functions are performed have greatly increased in number.

The Constitution makes it the duty of the Governor to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed." He is held responsible for the efficient and economical conduct of all of the administrative agencies of state government and the punctual and intelligent performance of their statutory functions. I think every fair-minded man will concede that the Governor's power ought to equal his responsibilities in this respect. Already the Governor appoints several commissions which are possessed of great power—power compared to which that enjoyed by the Attorney-General is insignificant. Either these commissioners must appoint their own attorneys at considerable additional expense to the taxpayers, or they must depend for legal assistance and counsel on the Attorney-General, whose office as now constituted is an independent agency, wholly unco-ordinated with these commissions, directly or indirectly. If the Attorney-General happens to belong to a different political party from that of the Governor and the important commissions he appoints, the situation is still more aggravated. This has happened many times in the history of the State.

The office of legal clerk to the Governor was created by the legislature of 1909 because the Governor and Attorney-General were of different parties. This was the beginning of a practice among state officials, commissions and institutions of employing counsel which cost the State large sums of money every year.

There is little force to the argument that the appointment of an attorney-general by the Governor is dangerous because of the centralization of power involved. The Attorney-General is now possessed of no material power which might be misused or abused by any executive, except possibly that of bringing unjust prosecution under the criminal statutes, which misuse or abuse is quite as likely to happen whether the Attorney-General is elected or appointed. The appointment of the Attorney-General by the Governor adds little to the power exercised by my last two predecessors in the appointment of the legal clerk, attorneys for the various commissions and boards of the State, but it will result in saving large sums of money and make this office a more efficient instrument of public service.

The present system is expensive and inefficient and in the past has resulted in the creation of many new and useless places and a large and unnecessary burden upon the State, amounting to as much as $75,000 in a single administration.

The Attorney-General is necessarily the legal arm of the executive; upon him must the Governor depend for carrying forward many of the acts of his administration, and the appointment should be made by the Governor.

I recommend that the office of Attorney-General as an elective office be abolished and that the Governor be authorized to appoint the Attorney-General on and after the expiration of the term of the present incumbent, Mr. Stansbury.

AS TO CENTRALIZATION OF POWER.

The cry has been raised in some quarters that in attempting to simplify and render more efficient the machinery of government of Indiana, we are tending toward a "dangerous centralization of power." While I believe that most of this criticism is honest, I feel sure that it arises from a hasty and immature consideration of the subject. I do not believe that we will be treading on dangerous ground if we give to the next chief executive of Indiana, whoever he may be, the right to choose his own legal adviser, a right enjoyed by every citizen of our land, a right accorded to the Mayor of every city in the State and to every other executive officer, from the President of the United States down to the most unassuming county commissioner.

I do not believe we will be treading on dangerous ground if we abolish certain scientific, elective and appointive offices which have always been the football of politics, and give the control of their affairs into the hands of a nonsalaried, nonpartisan commission, which can employ experts to look after the natural resources of our State, resources which were given by the Almighty not to our politicians, but to the people of Indiana for their sustenance and their comfort, useful so long as we use them wisely, conserving them for the millions of Hoosiers yet to come. I do not believe we will be treading on dangerous ground if we abolish certain offices which are useless, and in addition are a burden on the taxpayers of the State.

A dangerous centralization of power, as I see it, comes not in the attempt to simplify government for the purpose of rendering it more economical and efficient. Such danger comes from the attempt of the executive head of a state or nation to override the judicial and legislative branches of government, when the executive department seeks to make laws, to abolish or create offices, introduce regulations, or usurps other functions belonging to the legislative assembly, ignoring the Constitution and the courts, then, indeed, we have a dangerous centralization of power. I want to assure you that, during my administration we have had nor will have nothing of this kind. I have never sought to exercise the functions of the General Assembly. I recognize the Constitution of Indiana as a valid and binding document. I realize that my duty is to enforce the laws you men create and so far as possible to give the people of Indiana an economical administration of State affairs.

When some chief executive attempts to usurp the powers delegated to the legislative or judicial branches of our government it will be time to talk of dangerous centralization of power. That and not an attempt to simplify and render more responsible our state government will be a menace to the liberties of the people.

RAILROAD REGULATION.

The status of the railroads of the country will be determined by the Congress in the near future. If the roads go back to private ownership immediately, or in the near future, there is an urgent necessity for action on the part of the States to remove existing statutory rate restrictions. The railroads in Indiana, as in all other States, are now operating under a rate of 3 cents a mile, which was authorized by the federal railroad administration. If federal control should, and, unless prior action is taken, the roads will immediately pass back under the rate restrictions of the several States, such an action would surely prove fatal to transportation, and to the economic conditions of the country.

Therefore, I recommend the repeal of the present statutory railroad rate restrictions in Indiana, and urge that the power of determining such rates be vested in the Public Service Commission of Indiana until the permanent status of the railroads is fixed.

TEACHING OF GERMAN.

In 1869 a law was passed in Indiana providing that upon petition of the parents or guardians of twenty-five or more children in attendance of any school in a township or town or city, the German language should be taught as a branch of study in such school.

Whatever may have been the purpose behind the enactment of this law, it should not be allowed to stand upon our statute books. We should have only one language taught in the common schools of our country—the language of the Declaration of Independence.

If we are to think as Americans, act as Americans and ever make this truly a nation in heart and soul, it can only be through the teaching of a common tongue to our children. I recommend that this law be repealed.

PROHIBITION.

There has been certified to me a resolution passed by the Congress of the United States, a joint resolution, submitting to the States the question of amending the Constitution of the United States so as to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

It becomes my duty to transmit this resolution to you for your consideration, and this I now do.

HOME RULE FOR CITIES.

The cities of Indiana should be given a larger measure of home rule. I therefore, recommend the enactment of a law that will permit cities to adopt the commission or city manager form of government.

MINING LAWS.

It has been many years since there has been any change in our mining laws. The method of operating mines has been changed and our laws are inadequate properly to protect the mine workers of the State. I recommend that the mining laws be so amended as to afford better protection to both employer and employee.

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY.

This war brought many changes in the industrial and social life of the State and none was more significant than the increasing number of women in industry. Some women were moved by a desire to render a definite service in the war, while others were attracted by the high wages offered.

Employers have found these women in industry most efficient laborers, often excelling men in the same class of work. The women in industry in Indiana before the war, had increased from 30,000 in 1910, to 70,000 in 1917. At the close of the war more than 175,000 women were in industry in our State. It is evident that many of these women will find in the factory an enlarged field of action and a desirable opportunity to improve their condition.

No objection can be offered to the employment of women in industry if such employment is not used as a means to lower wages, if the principle of equal pay for equal service is firmly fixed and such employment is properly safeguarded by laws limiting hours of service and working conditions.

Recognizing the need of a woman's division of the inspection department in the industrial board to meet the new situation so created, I have appointed, paying the expense out of my Contingent Fund, Mrs. Arthur T. Cox of Lake County, to give her entire time to women and children in industry.

I recommend that a law be passed making permanent the woman's division in the inspection department, regulating the hours and safeguarding the working conditions of women in industry.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

It is the first duty of the State to do everything possible to conserve the health, the physical and moral well-being of our people. It has been demonstrated that our present health laws are inadequate to meet the situation. The revelation of the draft examinations are convincing. Not only has a large proportion of our young men been pronounced unfit for service and rejected on the initial examinations, but as the further sifting process has been continued, it has been ascertained that at least one-third of the young men of the country were unfit for service. The health authorities all agree that most of the defects and disabilities of these men were due to conditions that might have been prevented or cured in childhood, and that physical education is as necessary to the development of our young people as mental training. A sound mind must depend upon a sound body, and our educational system should be so organized as to provide for the compulsory physical education of our young people.

I am in full sympathy with the movement to require all-time health officials and trust that laws may be enacted by this General Assembly that will bring about the reforms suggested.

SOCIAL INSURANCE.

Within the past four years eight States have created commissions to investigate and report upon the subject of health and social insurance. These States are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. It is significant that two of these States are among our nearest neighbors. It is practically certain that within the next few years definite steps will be taken by some, if not by all, of these States to provide for some one or more kinds of social insurance. Insurance against sickness, old age and involuntary unemployment is already well established in many foreign countries where it has operated with considerable success and is making rapid progress in our own country. The Republican platform adopted at the last State convention committed the party to the appointment of a commission to investigate and report upon the subject of social insurance, and in conformity with this declaration I recommend the creation of a commission to perform this work.

TEACHERS' PENSION LAW.

I call your attention to the teachers' pension law which passed the General Assembly in 1913. Governor Ralston permitted the bill to become a law without his signature, but condemned it in the severest terms. The law is not based upon sound actuarial principles, is unfair and unjust. Under this law, any one who has been teaching for twenty-three years in the State of Indiana can, by paying into the fund a single payment of $600.00, immediately retire, engage in some other employment and for all the rest of his or her life receive a pension of $600.00 per annum. Many persons have already done this, and others are sure to follow their example if the law be continued as it now stands. The payments made by the teachers are totally inadequate and will lead to large and unexpected burdens upon the various school corporations within a very short time. School corporations are often induced to accept the conditions of this law with the misleading statement that it costs the taxpayer little or nothing and that it is supported by the contributions of the school teacher.

The law should be amended at once so as to provide that no further units or individual members shall be accepted under the provisions of the law. Provision should be made for the appointment of a commission to study the whole question and to submit a bill to the next General Assembly based upon solid actuarial principles. If the public is to be called upon to pay pensions to teachers, the amount of the contribution by the taxpayer should be just as definitely fixed as the contribution of the school teacher.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.

Under authority conferred upon the Governor by the General Assembly a committee on mental defectives was appointed to make a survey of the condition in Indiana and report to this session of the General Assembly.

That report has been completed and is now in the hands of the printer and will soon be before you for your consideration.

I concur in the recommendation of the committee and urge upon you the adoption of these recommendations as the bases of the future care of mental defectives in the State.

The following recommendations, in my opinion, should be immediately carried into effect and suitable appropriations made therefor:

1. Additional provisions for the care of women at the Village for Epileptics.

2. The establishment of a colony for the feeble-minded in the southern part of the State.

3. The establishment of new farm colonies, the construction of plain but substantial industrial buildings, in connection with all the insane hospitals, and the extension of colonies already established, so as to increase as rapidly as possible the capacity of these institutions and remove from the county jails and poor asylums the hundreds of insane persons now confined there.

4. Provision should be made for the voluntary admission of incipient cases of insanity to the various insane hospitals, such provision to be effective on proclamation of the Governor when the institutions are ready to receive them.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.

The State's financial affairs are upon a sound basis. The only indebtedness is a trust fund of $350,000 due Purdue University and there is a special balance of a like amount in the State treasury to meet this obligation.

Two years ago, the General Assembly reduced the state tax levy for all purposes more than 12 per cent.

The balance in the treasury on January 1, 1919, was $6,546,797.74, $2,270,786.24 of which is in the general fund.

The demands upon the treasury during the next biennial period will be greater than ever before in the history of the State. Many of these will seem imperative, others may be postponed for future consideration.

In view of the enormous expense incident to the war and the heavy burdens cast upon our people through federal legislation, I urge upon you that while nothing that is absolutely essential to the welfare of the State be neglected, that the most rigid economy be exercised, not only in making appropriations but in expending appropriations once made, and likewise in the expenditures of the General Assembly itself.

RURAL SCHOOL.

Within recent years, the rural school problem has attracted widespread attention in America. Expert schoolmen, acting under the direction of the Federal Commissioner of Education, have made numerous studies and surveys of rural school conditions and needs. As a result of the important disclosures made by these investigations, the county, as a unit of rural school organization and administration, has been approved by the Commissioner of Education, by the National Association of State Superintendents, and by the National Educational Association.

We boast with just pride of the organization and accomplishments of the rural schools of Indiana, but in the light of the action taken by these distinguished educational organizations and disclosures by the various health boards, it is evident that much remains to be accomplished. I recommend that you give such consideration to the rural school problems of Indiana as circumstances in your judgment will warrant.

REPORTS OF THE HIGHER COURTS.

The printing of the reports of the Supreme and Appellate courts is under the direction of the Board of Public Printing and the distribution under the direction of the Secretary of State. It would simplify matters if not only the printing, but the distribution of these reports were placed under the direction of the Board of Public Printing.

I, therefore, recommend that a law be passed giving the Board of Public Printing entire charge of the printing and distribution of these reports, and likewise the power now possessed by the Secretary of State, to fix the price at which the same should be sold.

STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE.

Immediately after the outbreak of the war, the national government requested each of the several States, through legislative action, to create a State Council of Defense for the purpose of aiding the government in carrying forward its war program. The General Assembly of this State had adjourned. After a conference with the leaders representing both political parties in the House and Senate, it was decided to undertake the work through a voluntary organization and to finance its activities through a loan of $100,000, pledging the good faith of the State to its repayment. This was done. Every citizen of our State is familiar with the efficient work performed by this organization.

All of the members of the State Council of Defense, including its chairman, and many of its officials, served without compensation. Appeal was made to the banks of the State to subscribe to the loan and it was rapidly oversubscribed, the $100,000 borrowed was covered into the treasury, the work of the Council is completed and there remains an unexpended balance of $11,397.83 in the State treasury.

I recommend that a bill be passed legalizing the action of the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State, and directing the payment of these bonds out of the balance in the State treasury.

LEGALIZING ACTS.

The last General Assembly made an appropriation of $350,000 to take care of the increased demands of the State institutions due to the then increased cost of living. After the adjournment of the General Assembly, America became involved in the war, the prices of all the necessities of life increased with great rapidity and it was apparent at an early day that the sum appropriated would not enable the institutions to complete their biennial period.

The increased cost of coal alone amounted to $255,000 a year. The strictest economy was enforced in the state institutions. Some of them completed their biennial period within their appropriations, others were confronted with heavy deficits, and at the end of the period, it was found that there was a deficit of $143,000.

At a conference held with the Governor, the Auditor and Treasurer of State, it was determined to pay these bills out of the unexpended balance in the general fund then in the state treasury and this amount was paid, vouchers for which are in the possession of the Auditor of State.

In addition to this action, it was found, as the war progressed, that it was essential for the various boards of county commissioners to take certain action not contemplated by the law. Upon the recommendation of the State Council of Defense, the State Board of Accounts, together with the Governor, and the chairman of the State Council, advised the various boards of county commissioners that if certain appropriations were made to meet the war emergencies, that while we had no legal authority to authorize such appropriations and increased allowances, the matter would be presented to the General Assembly and the enactment of legalizing acts requested.

A bill will be prepared and submitted to the General Assembly by the State Board of Accounts covering all these matters, and I recommend that such bill be enacted into law.

EMERGENCY CLAUSE.

It has been customary at previous sessions of the General Assembly to attach an emergency clause to many bills enacted into law, when as a matter of fact no real public emergency existed.

The Constitution contemplated that the laws enacted by the General Assembly should not become effective until after their publication and distribution to the various county clerks of the State, so that the people might, in this way, be advised as to the provisions of the law with which they were expected to comply. So that, unless there is a real imperative public emergency, I suggest that no emergency clause be attached to any of the bills passed by the General Assembly.

INDIANA REFORMATORY.

The Indiana Reformatory was destroyed by fire in the early part of 1918.

The change of the location of this institution to a more central point has often been suggested, and pending the action of the General Assembly on the question of its removal or rebuilding, nothing but temporary repairs have been made.

I have appointed a committee to investigate the whole subject, and report to this General Assembly their conclusion. A copy of their report has been submitted to me and likewise placed in your hands. I concur in the report of this committee and recommend that it be declared to be the policy of the State to abandon the present reformatory as soon as a new institution can be built at a more central part of the State, that a commission be appointed to carry forward the work under such terms and conditions as the General Assembly may think advisable.

UNPAID BOARDS OF TRUSTEES.

During the last twenty-five years, many of the boards of the State in charge of the State institutions and other activities of the State have served without salary, while others have been allowed a compensation of $300 a year. The record shows a higher percentage of attendance on the part of unpaid boards than by the paid boards.

I am convinced that the State will receive fully as large a measure of service from unpaid boards as it will under the present method. It will have the additional advantage of leaving the Governor free from political pressure in the selection of these boards, and he can call forth the highest business and professional ability of the State to render this service. The positions then will be honorary and will be accepted by men as an opportunity for unselfish public service.

This action has been repeatedly recommended by the Board of State Charities which is itself a nonsalaried board, and I heartily concur in such recommendation. I do this with the assurance to you that if this action is taken no interest of the State will suffer, but on the contrary, I believe that the results will be altogether beneficial.

INDIANA MEDICAL SCHOOL.

The last General Assembly in the closing days passed a bill appropriating $350,000 to the State university for the erection of a new medical school near the Long Hospital. The bill did not become a law. I declined to permit it to do so for the reason that I thought the understanding had between the educational institutions and the State during Governor Ralston's administration that the fixed levy provided for the educational institutions was to take care of their present and future requirements, ought not to be ignored at this early date.

Since that time, some of the friends of the university have come to its assistance and it is now engaged in the construction of the new medical school building. When that building is completed, they will no longer need the old medical school building immediately west of the State House. The ownership of this building should be held by the State, and I, therefore, recommend that an appropriation of $200,000 be made to compensate Indiana University for any loss they have sustained through the turning over of the building and grounds to the State and that as soon as the new building is completed, the State take and maintain possession of the building and the Auditor of State be authorized to rent the building and collect the rents and profits as he does the other State-owned property.

YEAR BOOK.

The publication of the Year Book, by authority of the last session of the General Assembly, has met with almost universal approval and saved more than $20,000 a year to the State over the old system of publishing the reports of the various State officials.

I recommend that a suitable appropriation be made for the continuation of this work and the Governor be authorized to continue the publication of the Year Book in lieu of the separate reports of the various officials, boards and commissions.

FAIRBANKS MONUMENT.

The State of Indiana has not been in the past unmindful of its men who have distinguished themselves in war, in art, letters or other public service, but has given due recognition to her distinguished sons.

Charles Warren Fairbanks represented this State in the Senate of the United States for nearly ten years. He was Vice-President of the United States during Roosevelt's second term and his party's candidate for Vice-President in 1916. Because of his long and honorable career in the public service and of his distinguished service to the State, I recommend that a commission be created and an appropriation made to erect, either in the State House grounds or University Park, a suitable monument in commemoration of the life and public service of Mr. Fairbanks.

JAMES F. D. LANIER.

During the Civil war when the country was torn with internal dissension and the loyalty of Indiana to the national cause was questioned by many of her own citizens, at a time when the General Assembly of the State had failed to appropriate sufficient funds to enable Governor Morton to support the government in the great conflict for the preservation of the nation, James F. D. Lanier, a former Hoosier, and at that time a banker of New York City, came forward and placed his money at the disposal of Morton and the State, trusting to the loyalty and high sense of honor of the people of Indiana to reimburse him after the war.

I believe his service to the State ought to be recognized by a suitable memorial, and I recommend that action be taken by the General Assembly authorizing the accomplishment of this purpose.

I want to close by again reminding you of the fact that we are entering an important era of reconstruction.

I believe you can best aid in this reconstruction by enacting laws which will render our state government more responsible and more economical, which will serve to equalize among the people to a greater degree the burdens of government, which will so far as possible aid and encourage our people to go on with the improvements and to resume the progress interrupted by the great war.

For this reconstruction there can be no program of mathematical precision. It must be accomplished by work and not by theorizing. Of the results of reconstruction by theory and not by labor and common sense, we have an eloquent and deplorable example in the present condition of Russia and Germany.

What the people need and what they are going to demand in the next few years will not be programs, but facts; not theorists, but workers. The man who renders the greatest assistance in the coming year of reconstruction, will be the man who knows how to think logically, who knows how to employ sound judgment and common sense and above all who knows how to work. These are the qualities which reconstruction will require in Indiana—logical thinking, sound judgment, good sense and industry. They are qualities for which Hoosiers have always been noted and qualities which our State possess now as much as ever.

As we pass from the shadow of war to the dawn of peace, confronting the important problems that will be presented to you, let us in the face of this great responsibility, sink every selfish personal difference, every individual ambition, and every ulterior party purpose, and resolve that to the record of devotion to the land we love manifested in time of war by the men and women of Indiana, shall be added a record of unselfish, patriotic service by the General Assembly of this State in time of peace.

Whereas, there has passed from this earth to the realms unknown of man—

A heart always faithful and fearless,
A mind of the fibre of steel,
A soul of the patriot fearless,
Where Liberty made her appeal.

A man who was proud of his nation
A man whom his nation revered,
A man who could rise to occasion,
When danger to nation appeared.

A man whom the world loved to honor,

A man to whom monarchs deferred,
A man, although born to the manor
His voice for the masses was heard.

A soul that could look to the morrow
 With no fear of past to betide;
 The world bowed with us in our sorrow
 When Theodore Roosevelt died.

Therefore be it resolved, that when this Senate adjourn, it shall adjourn in honor of our distinguished and now deceased fellow American, Theodore Roosevelt, until the hour of two o'clock p. m. on Monday the 13th day of January, 1919.

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of Indiana, That the profound thanks of the people of the State are due, and are now extended, to all soldier boys from this State who helped to make the name of America glorious at Cantigny, Chateau Thierry and all the other battles in which they took part in France in behalf of the democracy of the world.

We, the people of Indiana, also thank them for their splendid moral conduct, for their soldierly bearing and for their splendid bravery.

We thank them from the bottom of our hearts because they taught the world that the best reliance of our Nation in the hour of its peril is the enthusiastic patriotism and the indomitable heart of the American soldier when he is fighting for high ideals.

We thank them also because they were lions in the fight, and when the fight was over, they became the same splendid, modest Americans they had always been in private life.

We thank them because by their timely assistance, the fainting spirit of the Allies was revived, and the autocrats of Germany were hurled to dishonorable and inglorious defeat.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana that the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of Indiana is hereby proposed and agreed to by this, the Seventy-first (71st) General Assembly of the State of Indiana, and is referred to the next General Assembly of the State for reconsideration and agreement.

Section 2. That section fourteen (14) of article five (V) of the Constitution of the State of Indiana be amended to read as follows: Section 14. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of all of the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the Governor's objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by a majority of all of the members elected to that house, it shall be a law. If any bill

If the General Assembly be in session, the Governor shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated, a copy of such statement, and the item or items so objected to shall be separately reconsidered in the same manner as bills which have been disapproved by the Governor, and if, on reconsideration, one or more of such items shall be approved by a majority of all the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law notwithstanding the objections of the Governor.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION
No. 10.

Offered by Senator English.

A joint resolution to amend article four (IV) of the Constitution of the State of Indiana by adding thereto a new section to be numbered section thirty-one (31) relating to an executive budget.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, that the following amendment is hereby proposed and agreed to by this, the Seventy-first (71st) General Assembly of the State of Indiana and is referred to the next General Assembly of the State of Indiana for reconsideration and agreement.

Section 2. That article four (IV) of the Constitution of the State of Indiana be amended by adding thereto a new section to be designated and numbered as section thirty-one (31) to read as follows: Section 31. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the treasury except in accordance with the following provisions:

Sub-Section A.

Every appropriation bill shall be either a budget bill, or a supplementary appropriation bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B.

First: Within ten days after the convening of the General Assembly, except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within fifteen days after his inauguration, unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan for proposed expenditures, and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to important features of any budget and any suggestions as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second: Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first shall be designated government appropriations and shall embrace the itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the executive department; (3) for the judiciary department as certified to the Governor by the Auditor of State; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of any debt the State of Indiana created in conformity with the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under the Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the aid of public schools or higher institutions of learning in conformity with the Constitution and the laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof.

Third: The second part shall be designated General Appropriations and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each house the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each house shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the budget bill. The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight, or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly, by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officer of each house; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect any lawful obligation of the State contracted in pursuance of any provisions of the Constitution or laws enacted in pursuance thereof, or so as to create a deficit, but may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly, and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein; provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office.

Fourth: The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or applying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either house of the General Assembly, or any duly authorized committee of either house, it shall be their duty to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section C.

Neither house shall consider other appropriations until the budget bill has been finally acted upon by both houses, and no such other appropriations shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following:

1. Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose therein stated and called herein a supplementary appropriation bill;

2. Each supplementary appropriation bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said bill, unless it appears from such budget that there is sufficient revenue available;

3. No supplementary appropriation bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each house by a vote of the majority of all the members elected to each house and the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage;

4. Each supplementary appropriation bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in section fourteen (14) of article five (V) of the Constitution, and thereafter all provisions of said section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the General Assembly from passing at any time, in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-five (25) of article four (IV) of the Constitution, and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in section fourteen (14) of article five (V) of the Constitution, any appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Indiana within the protection of section ten (10) article one (I) of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D.

First: If the budget bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the General Assembly three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such bill; but no other matter than such bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof. Members of the General Assembly shall serve without pay during said extended session.

Second: The Governor, for the purpose of making up his budget, shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper state officials including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative officers, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and institutions applying for state moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information in such form and at such time as he shall direct. The estimates for the legislative department, certified by the presiding officer of each house, of the judiciary, as certified by the Auditor of the State, and for the public schools or higher institutions of learning as certified by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction or the administrative head of such institution, shall be transmitted to the Governor in such form and at such time as he shall direct and shall be included in the budget.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies and all institutions applying for state moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third: The General Assembly may from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth: In the event of an inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the Governor from calling special sessions of the legislature as provided by section nine (9) article four (IV), or as preventing the General Assembly at such special sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the bill or any other item of such bill or bills.

Having been read for the first time, it was referred to the Committee on Constitutional Revision.

RESOLUTION No. 10.

Handed down by the Chair.

Indianapolis, Indiana,
December 31, 1918.

Be it resolved: That the Indiana Shoe Travelers Association, in behalf of the 17,000 commercial travelers of the State of Indiana, protest against any attempt to repeal the present primary law, and favor only such changes in said law as will give more power to the people in selecting their candidates for office; and if the present absentee voters' law does not apply to the primary, we would ask the legislature to provide that it do so; and

Be it further Resolved, That as the old convention system deprived the people of their right to select their own candidates for office, that to return to it would be a backward step. The professional politician is not endowed by divine right to select our candidates for office, and no consideration should be given his plea for selecting candidates by geographical location or on account of their appeal to certain classes of our citizenship by reason of the candidate's hyphenated Americanism. We want American candidates only, and efficient public servants, and it does not matter whether our officials come from one locality only or are selected from several localities, so long as they are competent to fulfill the duties of the office to which they aspire, in a manner satisfactory to the public. The plea of excessive expense of the primary to the candidates and public has no weight, for good officials fairly and honestly selected by the people will save more than the cost of the primary by efficient management of public affairs.

Therefore, be it further Resolved: That we most respectfully request Governor Goodrich to use his influence to see that our present primary law is retained and strengthened, and that copies of these resolutions be mailed to our Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the State Secretaries of the various travelers organizations of the State, asking their co-operation in our efforts to retain our primary law.

PETITION PRESENTED BY SEN-ATOR FURNAS.

The following petition was presented by Senator Furnas.

MODOC, INDIANA,
January 13, 1919.

Mr. Miles Furnas, Indianapolis, Ind.:

Dear Sir—We, the undersigned trustee and teachers of West River, Randolph County, beg to call your attention to some reforms which we would like to have made in the laws which govern the teaching body of the State.

The salary of the grade teachers should be doubled, since the cost of professional training and living expenses have so greatly increased and the outside demands on the teachers are so great that it is impossible to meet these requirements and make adequate provision for the future.

A definite term of office should be guaranteed. Teachers who have proved their ability should be relieved from the embarrassing and often unjust strain of teachers' examinations.

We feel that competent teachers, well paid, and free from the racking uncertainty of securing license and political control of school boards, will be able to accomplish so much more of real worth for the schools of the State that the results will justify the expenditures.

May we count on your assistance in this matter?

(Signed) THOMAS C. SACKETT,
Trustee.

HAZEL FLETCHER,
Secretary, and Twelve others.

Read and referred to Committee on Education.

Chair handed down the following telegram from United States Senator Harry S. New:

Whereas, The world is just emerging from the worst war ever known to civilization in which democracy has triumphed over autocracy and the people who believe that liberty is a gift from God inherited alike by each individual have won a great victory. And

Whereas, This victory was purchased at the price of life, suffering, trials and hardships of our soldiers on land and on sea and by patriotic sacrifices made by a loyal citizenship at home; and while we look with pride upon the splendid record of our army and navy for their just part in making the world a fit place to live in. And

and responsibilities are before us as a nation in the final peace proceedings now beginning in a foreign land.

Therefore be it resolved by the Senate of the State of Indiana: That we are in favor of a league of nations, such as will make war impossible in the future. We commend all steps taken thus far by our President, who is the recognized leader of the world in laying the foundation for the world's future peace, and we pledge the loyalty of the citizenship of the great State to the commission abroad in the efforts to secure a lasting peace in which Christianity may triumph and barbarism may disappear in the world.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 23.

Senator English submitted the following resolution:

A joint resolution to amend article four (IV) of the Constitution of the State of Indiana by adding thereto a new section to be numbered section thirty-one (31), relating to an executive budget.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That the following amendment is hereby proposed and agreed to by this, the Seventy-first (71st) General Assembly of the State of Indiana and is referred to the next General Assembly of the State of Indiana for reconsideration and agreement.

Section 2. That article four (IV) of the Constitution of the State of Indiana be amended by adding thereto a new section to be designated and numbered as section thirty-one (31) to read as follows: Section 31. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the treasury except in accordance with the following provisions:

Sub-Section A.

Every appropriation bill shall be either a budget bill or a supplementary appropriation bill, as hereinafter mentioned.

Sub-Section B.

First. Within ten days after the convening of the General Assembly, except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within fifteen days after his inauguration, unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan for proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates; and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (1) the revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding; (2) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (3) the debts and funds of the State; (4) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided; (5) any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget and any suggestions as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second. Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first shall be designated "governmental appropriations" and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations: (1) for the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the manner hereinafter provided; (2) for the executive department; (3) for the judiciary department as certified to the Governor by the Auditor of State; (4) to pay and discharge the principal and interest of any debt of the State of Indiana created in conformity with the Constitution, and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof; (5) for the salaries payable by the State under the Constitution and laws of the State; (6) for the aid of public schools or higher institutions of learning in conformity with the Constitution and laws of the State; (7) for such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof.

Third. The second part shall be designated "General Appropriation", and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each House the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each House shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "budget bill".

The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly, by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officer of each House; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect any lawful obligation of the State contracted in pursuance of any provision of the Constitution or the laws enacted in pursuance thereof, or so as to create a deficit but may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly, and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but, except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein: Provided, however, That the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office.

Fourth. The Governor and such representatives of the executive departments, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or applying for State's money, as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either House of the General Assembly, or any duly authorized committee of either House, it shall be their duty, to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

Sub-Section 'C.

Neither House shall consider other appropriations until the budget bill has been finally acted upon by both Houses, and no such other appropriations shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following:

(1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose therein stated and called herein a supplementary appropriation bill; (2) each supplementary bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said bill unless it appears from such budget that there is sufficient revenue available; (3) no supplementary appropriation bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each House by a vote of the majority of all members elected to each House and yeas and nays recorded on its final passage; (4) each supplementary appropriation bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in section fourteen, of article five of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the General Assembly from passing at any time, in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-five (25) of article four (IV) of the Constitution, and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in section fourteen (14) of article five (V) of the Constitution, an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Indiana within the protection of section 10 article 1 of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D.

First. If the budget bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the General Assembly three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such bill; but no other matter than such bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof. Members of the General Assembly shall serve without pay during said extended session.

Second. The Governor, for the purpose of making up his budgets, shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper state officials, including therein all executive departments, all executive and administrative officers, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and institutions applying for state moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such time as he shall direct. The estimates for the legislative department, certified by the presiding officer of each House, of the judiciary, as certified by the Auditor of State, and for the public schools or higher institutions of learning as certified by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction or the administrative head of such institution shall be transmitted to the Governor in such form and at such time as he shall direct and shall be included in the budget.

The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and all institutions applying for state moneys. After such public hearings, he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third. The General Assembly may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth. In the event of an inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the Governor from calling special sessions of the legislature as provided by section 9 of article IV, or as preventing the General Assembly at such special sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the bill or of any item of such bill or bills.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 2.

Senator Maier submitted Concurrent Resolution No. 2.

Which was made special order of business Monday, January 27th at 2:00 p. m.

A concurrent resolution authorizing the appointment by the Governor of a State Board of Commissioners for the reclamation of swamp and overflow lands in the State of Indiana, outlining the duties of said state board when appointed, and authorizing the payment of the expenses of said board from the State Treasury.

Preamble.

Whereas, A canvass was made by the Office of Experiment Stations of the United States Department of Agriculture in the year 1907 to determine the area of swamp and overflowed lands in the States east of the Rocky Mountains, and a report of the results of said canvass as made to the Honorable James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, on August 31, 1907, by A. C. True, Director, all as fully set forth in the United States Department of Agriculture, Office of Experiment Stations, Circular 76, disclosed the estimate that there were at said time 1,250 square miles or 800,000 acres of such lands in the State of Indiana; and

Whereas, It was declared as the opinion of said Office of Experiment Stations, from the data collected and analyzed by it, that said 800,000 acres of land could be reclaimed and made fit for cultivation by the building of simple engineering structures; and

Whereas, It is there estimated that more than 95% of the entire amount of said 800,000 acres is held in private ownership; and

Whereas, There is no question as to the fertility of said land, and when it is protected by embankments to keep out the overflow and is relieved of the excess of water by proper drainage, the productiveness of said land is unexcelled; and

Whereas, The marshes of Holland, two-fifths of which lie below the level of the sea, have been successfully reclaimed, and the fens of England, situated in like manner, have been successfully reclaimed, both by dikes and by ditches, supplemented by pumps; and

Whereas, In the opinion of the supervising engineers of the United States Department of Agriculture, the engineering problems involved in the reclamation of the swamp and overflow lands of the State of Indiana are simple for the reason that these lands are above sea-level and have natural creeks or bayous, which need only to be improved by a straightening, widening and deepening to afford outlets for complete drainage, and in the case of the river bottoms need to have built levees to prevent overflow, and the construction of internal systems of drainage with sluice gates or pumps to discharge the water from within, which work, because of the use of modern machinery, is neither difficult nor expensive; and

Whereas, Levees can be built and ditches excavated with suitable dredges or other adaptable means, at a cost justified by the increased value added to said lands by the construction of such works in such lands have been readily and cheaply constructed in this manner; and

Whereas, Work of this character has been performed in various sections of the United States at an average cost of fifteen dollars per acre; and

Whereas, The lands benefited thereby in different sections of the country have risen in value from an average of probably eight dollars to an average of sixty to one hundred dollars per acre at the completion of the work; and

Whereas, In the State of Indiana large areas of swamp and overflow lands have been successfully reclaimed by drainage and by construction of levees; for instance on the Wabash River the following levee systems protecting the respective amounts of acreage assigned: A levee at Newport, Indiana, protecting fifteen hundred acres; a levee opposite Clinton, Indiana, protecting fifteen hundred acres; the Blocksom levee near Terre Haute, Indiana, protecting twelve hundred acres; the Island levee near Sullivan, Indiana, protecting six thousand acres; the Gill township levee in Sullivan County, protecting twelve thousand acres; the original Brevoort levee at Vincennes, protecting twelve thousand acres, and the levee known as the William H. Brevoort, et al., levee, being an extension of the above Brevoort levee, protecting fifty thousand acres; and in addition thereto various isolated levees protecting lands against the effect of headwaters of the rivers; so that the reclamation of swamp and overflow lands in Indiana is no longer an experiment, but on the contrary has become a highly profitable business both to the individual and to the public, when based on correct principles; and

Whereas, Surveys heretofore made have demonstrated that large areas of swamp and overflow lands in Indiana, not yet reclaimed and protected, are capable of being reclaimed and protected, said areas being of various extent in acreage, and in one instance aggregating an approximate acreage of sixty thousand acres in one large body; and

Whereas, As to much of said lands conditions are such that reclamation can not be secured effectively by mutual consent of the owners of said lands, and the conditions and requirements of present and existing laws of the State of Indiana applicable thereto cannot be met and complied with in such manner as to enable proposed projects for such reclamation to be carried through; and

Whereas, Reclamation of such lands is a public function under the declared policy of the statutes of the State of Indiana, because such reclamation confers a benefit on the community at large by improving the public health, benefiting public highways, and by contributing to the general welfare of the community, although the cost of such reclamation has heretofore been left to the owners of the lands benefited, and such powers only have been delegated by statute as have been considered necessary to enable the owners of the land to be benefited to carry out the work of reclamation at their own expense; and

Whereas, Some more effective legal method of compulsion seems necessary so as to enable said work of reclamation to proceed more effectively and more expeditiously; and

Whereas, By virtue of the carrying out of said work of reclamation in a feasible and practicable manner, increased productiveness of lands of the State of Indiana could be brought about, the taxable value of the State would be permanently increased, the healthfulness of the community would be improved, mosquitos and malaria would be banished, the construction and maintenance of good roads made possible, and factories, churches and schools could be opened up so as to provide more and better homes for the persons resident within said areas, by all of which steps, that, which is in effect a nuisance, will be abated and these lands would be made to contribute dependably and permanently to the support and up-building of the State; therefore,

Investigation of Area and Location of Swamp and Overflow Lands.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana that the Governor be and is hereby authorized to appoint a State Board of Commissioners for the reclamation of swamp and overflow lands in the State of Indiana, composed of three members, and that said Board be and it is hereby empowered and directed to make a full, complete and impartial investigation of the location, extent in acreage and conditions surrounding the various swamp and overflow lands of the State of Indiana, with a view of determining what of said lands can be practicably and reasonable reclaimed either by the means of drainage or by protection by embankments, or by both means. Said Board shall, in connection with its said investigation, consider the matter of recommendation of additional legislation for passage by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana.

Term of Office.

Section 2. The members of said Board shall serve only and until the first day of March, 1921, and they shall serve without compensation.

Expenses.

Section 3. The expenses of such investigation shall be audited and approved by such Board, and shall be paid out of the State Treasury upon the approval of the Governor and of the Auditor of State.

Report.

Section 4. Said Board shall, as soon as reasonably practicable, begin the said work of investigation, and when completed, the Board shall report its findings and conclusions and its recommendations to the General Assembly of 1921.

Which was concurred in. Made special order for Jan. 27, 1919.

MR. PRESIDENT:

I offer the following resolution and move its adoption:

Whereas, There is now being carried forward a nation-wide movement for the gathering of funds for the relief of the Armenian people—that race known to have been first to espouse the Christian religion; and

Whereas, Among all the brutal atrocities perpetrated by Germany, and under her direction by other nations, none compare in studied, systematic fiendishness to the devastation of Armenia by the Turks under German officers, save only devoted Belgium—that devastation being truly characterized by Henry Morgenthau, our Ambassador to Turkey, as "the greatest single horror ever perpetrated in the history of humanity"; and

Whereas, Since peace seems assured on the European battle fronts, the world, in its reasonable desire to again assume the normal conditions and follow the normal inclinations existing before the Hohenzollern ran amuck on the earth, may be inclined to forget the terrible conditions existing in the near east, where relief may be hoped for only from the plenty of our own peaceful and prosperous America; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Senate that the attention of our State is hereby especially directed to the movement now going on for the collection of Armenian relief funds in their respective localities; and to the urgent necessity for giving aid to that movement in the fulness of Christian spirit and generosity consistent with our loyalty to and interest in the cause of humanity for which Armenia gave the greatest of all sacrifices—its very existence.

Hon. E. D. Bush, State House, Indianapolis, Indiana:

Dear Sir—Whereas, House Bill No. 6 now pending final action by the present General Assembly of Indiana would, if passed in its present form, make it a misdemeanor to use any "foreign languages" as a medium of instruction in all schools that come under the Indiana School attendance laws; and

Whereas, Such a law would also make it a misdemeanor to use a "foreign language" for religious instruction in any and all schools under the Indiana attendance laws; and

Whereas, Such a law would work a serious hardship on many of our Lutheran parish schools in the State of Indiana by compelling them to immediately change from one language to another in instruction of religion; and

Whereas, All of our Lutheran parish schools in Indiana are now and for many years have been using no foreign languages as a medium of instruction in all common school branches, as arithmetic, history, geography, etc., and,

Whereas, The Constitution of Indiana guarantees to all citizens of the State the right to worship their God and to exercise their religion according to the dictates of their conscience, therefore,

Be it resolved, That we the First Evangelical Lutheran Immanuel Church, Seymour, Indiana, do hereby request that you, as our representative, use your influence and do everything in your power that House Bill No. 6 be amended to permit the instruction of religion in a "foreign language" in schools that come under the Indiana school attendance laws.

To the Seventy-first General Assembly of the State of Indiana:

Your joint committee appointed to prepare a tribute to Theodore Roosevelt, beg leave to report the following memorial:

Everything mortal must have its birth, its growth and its decay. From this inexorable law, man himself is not exempt, and Theodore Roosevelt has yielded to this solemn fate of us all.

Born to physical infirmity, it soon became apparent to his friends, and to none more clearly than himself, that his frail body could not long contain his buoyant and panting spirit. In search of health and strength, he sought the great American plains, where men get close to nature and still closer to each other. Here in this virgin air of the west, he grew into vigorous and forceful manhood. It was here he endured the hardships of frontier life, learned the virtues of patience, obedience and self-denial and became at once a leader among his fellows. Here he formed his warmest and most lasting friendships, and left the impression of his unique personality.

His was a most intense and strenuous life, and runs in close parallel with that of Elijah, the man of the fiery chariot, and of David, the militant king of Israel. His versatility led him into many avenues of service and the range of his activities was as wide as the field of human endeavor. He was an explorer of international renown; his researches in natural history are a valuable addition to the book of knowledge. His contributions to American literature stamp him as a man of learning, a patron of letters. He will be known in military annals as a soldier of approved valor, a commanding figure in the struggle that drove Spanish tyranny beyond the seas. Fresh, also, in our memory are a multitude of other achievements which crowded and crowned his eventful life, the details and importance of which must be left to the unbiased hand of the historian. But in the realm of statesmanship he is most illustrious. Entering public life at the age of twenty-three, he became successively, a legislator of his native state, police commissioner of New York City, civil service commissioner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Governor of New York, Vice-President and President of the United States. Each station that he occupied was re-born and regenerated by the burning genius of his intense personality. He came into national leadership at a time when the money changers needed scourging, and there was a call for purging of our political and commercial life. His intense zeal and strenuous activity in effecting many reforms drew around him a multitude of ardent admirers, and likewise arrayed against him a host of adversaries, generating antagonisms that unchained the fiercest and most violent passions of men. In the ensuing contests he fought honestly, earnestly and faithfully. How wisely he judged and how well he wrought must be left to that magnificent producer, the hand of time.

For centuries the dream of statesmen and the hope of mariners had been for some avenue of escape from the perils of the long and tedious journey around the Horn. To the constructive statesmanship of Theodore Roosevelt was left the solution of this world problem; and the establishment of the Panama Canal will stand out in bold relief as the crowning achievement of his administration. By this brilliant stroke, we severed a hemisphere and coupled the oceans; quadrupled the flight of the wings of commerce, and brought the nations alongside each other, thereby facilitating the great movement for the brotherhood of man, the league of nations, the federation of states; for it is through this international gateway that the nations of the earth must ever meet and mingle.

In the field of initiative he had many competitors but no rivals. Upon retiring from the Presidency he continued to battle with unabated zeal for national integrity and the supremacy of American ideals as predominating factors in moulding our national destiny and shaping the world's diplomacy. In clear vision he saw in the conflict of arms that this nation could not escape the vortex of a universal war. Entering this world-wide arena, by common consent, he at once became a figure of commanding importance, an international minister without a portfolio, and to the end he battled for humanity and the natural rights of man.

Born at a time when this nation was moved and stirred by the tragic events attending the martyrdom of the enthusiast John Brown and the sainted Abraham Lincoln, he likewise took his departure amid the dying embers of the fires of a war that shook the universe and made the world a sepulcher of heroes. He dwelt among men full three score years in which the earth has yielded its richest fruitage. And when the hand of time shall draw aside the curtain sufficient to disclose the strength and character of his accomplishments, Theodore Roosevelt will stand as a predominating factor in the achievements of his day, and his final benediction of intense Americanism will ever remain a theme of the nation's firesides.

Senate resolution.

Senator Duffey offered the following Senate resolution No. 26:

MR. PRESIDENT:

I offer the following resolution and move its adoption:

Whereas, There is a universally recognized necessity for better base line highways and their rapid development for increasing, quickening and perfecting the general transportation system of our state and nation; and

Whereas, There is a general demand to expedite the distribution of the ever increasing volume of farm products and food stuffs as well as manufactured articles which of a necessity will increase the use of our highways, hence a well defined, all-serving connected and on-going state system of highways is necessary; and,

Whereas, Many of our highways are used and worn by federal and interstate traffic; and,

Whereas, Many of our states have created and Indiana is about to revamp her laws creating a strong centralized highway department with power to use State and Federal money in the construction of important inter-county highways and lend assent to all federal road building projects; and,

Whereas, The desired results can best be accomplished by a more strict classification of effort on the part of the various units of government including Federal, State, County, Township or abutting property owners rather than by either Federal absorption of the State's function or by the overloading of local duties: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That we recommend and urge our Representatives in Congress to continue and increase the appropriations of Federal aid to the State in road building covering a period of years by supporting the concurrent report of United States Senate Post Office Committees on $200,000,000 post road appropriation to the end that progressive action, by this and other states, may be encouraged and made definite, thus permitting us to keep pace with the development of our country and its transportation system.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 3.

Senator NejdI offered the following Senate Concurrent resolution.

MR. PRESIDENT:

I offer the following concurrent resolution and move its adoption:

Concurrent resolution protesting against any freight increase in sand, gravel, stone, slag and other building materials.

Whereas, The Central District Freight Traffic Committee is considering an increase in freight rates on stone, slag, sand, gravel and other building materials; and,

Whereas, All such materials are necessary in the construction of roads, bridges, buildings and public improvements of all kinds; and,

Whereas, There is sound reason for believing that we shall be confronted with a grave unemployment problem during the next few months and until war workers and returning soldiers can be reabsorbed into normal industry; and,

Whereas, It is a fact that the resumption of usual industry will be slow in many important branches; that only prompt action by government and municipal agencies through the inauguration of public works on a large scale can avail in meeting the impending critical situation, the consequent acute suffering and the unrest that will follow in the wake of wide-spread idleness; that interrupted public work should be resumed at once; that deferred work should be begun, and that new work, contemplated for a later date, should be promptly planned and be taken up now; that no community should postpone public work while awaiting lower costs; that the cost of a human discontent and resentment will over-balance a small percentage on monetary cost of such public work; and,

Whereas, The sudden termination of the war has brought the country to a sharp realization that our manpower and our industrial powers must now be demobilized from the destructive work of war and remobilized for the constructive work of peace; that millions of soldiers must be returned from the armies to private employment; that millions of war workers must be mustered out of the industrial armies and be reabsorbed into the industries of peace; that war contracts amounting to many billions of dollars annually must shortly be replaced by peace contracts for more than a like amount; and,

Whereas, Employment can be found for a large number of such returning soldiers and war workers in the construction of public improvements of all characters; and,

Whereas, The proposed increase in freight rates will impose an unjust, unnecessary and undue burden on the district affected, all of which will result in a delay, if not an actual stoppage, in the construction of many public improvements; therefore be it

Resolved, By the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That the proposed increase in freight rates on sand, gravel, stone, slag and other building materials is unjust, unnecessary, oppressive and contrary to the best interests of the people, and that the increase, if made, will delay much public work and even prevent the construction of much public, as well as private work, and that there should be no increase in freight rates on such building materials; and be it further

Resolved, That the attorney-general of the State of Indiana is hereby directed by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, to attend or have one (1) of his deputies attend the meeting of the Central District Freight Traffic Committee to be held at Chicago on January 30, 1919, at 11 a. m., at the LaSalle Hotel, to represent the interests of the State of Indiana in protesting against the proposed increase in freight rates affecting public improvements.

Which concurrent resolution was concurred in.

The Chair handed down the following report of the Attorney-General:

To the 71st General Assembly of the State of Indiana:

The undersigned, Ele Stansbury, as Attorney-General, within and for the State of Indiana, hereby begs to report that pursuant to a Senate concurrent resolution, duly adopted by the General Assembly on the 29th day of January, 1919, directing the said Attorney-General to attend a meeting of certain freight traffic committees, in the City of Chicago, on the 30th day of January, 1919. I sent Dale F. Stansbury, a deputy in my office, to attend said meeting. I also procured Mr. O. F. Goethland, who is the rate adjuster of the Public Service Commission, to accompany my deputy.

That on Friday morning Mr. Goethland and my deputy proceeded to the LaSalle Hotel, in the City of Chicago, where they found in session a sub-committee of the Chicago Eastern District Freight Traffic Committee, and the Cincinnati Freight Traffic Committee, who had there met representatives of the National Sand and Gravel Association, a representative from the Michigan, Pennsylvania and Illinois Highway Commission, a representative of the Employment Bureau at the United States Capitol, and many others who were interested in the rates of freight upon sand, gravel, slag and crushed stone. About two hundred fifty men were in attendance. The meeting was brought about at the request of the sand, gravel, slag and crushed stone dealers, who were holding a national convention in Chicago at that time.

The object of the meeting was to protest against a proposed change in freight rates upon said materials, and to change it from a specific rate to a mileage basis. There was much discussion on the subject, but the dealers were practically unanimous in their opposition to the change. A resolution by the General Assembly of Ohio protesting against the change was read; also the deputy from my department read to the meeting your resolution of protest against such change.

W. M. Conley, freight traffic manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad Lines, was chairman of the conference and the trend of the argument was to the effect that the proposed changes would be injurious and in many cases ruinous to the construction of the road improvements and other building projects, that the rates as proposed would be much higher than the rates now in force and there would be a tendency to reduce the tonnage and the amount of improvements which would cause a smaller demand for labor, and in the end would produce less revenue.

It was very apparent that the representatives of the railroads, who in turn were representing the United States Railroad administration, were there to listen rather than to be heard. They suggested nothing and did not indicate how they had been impressed by the conference. However, there was a prevailing opinion among the protestants that the prospects were, the change would not be made.

Dated this 1st day of February, 1919.

Respectfully,

ELE STANSBURY,
Attorney-General.

Section 1. Be it Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That the following amendment is hereby proposed and agreed to by this the Seventy-first (71st) General Assembly of the State of Indiana and is referred to the next General Assembly of the State of Indiana for reconsideration and agreement.

Sec. 2. That article four (IV), of the Constitution of the State of Indiana be amended by adding thereto a new section to be designated and numbered as section thirty-one (31) to read as follows: Section 31. The General Assembly shall not appropriate any money out of the treasury except in accordance with the following provisions:

SUB-SECTION A.

Every appropriation bill shall be either a budget bill, or a supplementary appropriation bill as hereinafter mentioned.

SUB-SECTION B.

First, within ten days after the convening of the General Assembly, except in the case of a newly elected Governor, and then within fifteen days after his inauguration, unless such time shall be extended by the General Assembly for the session at which the budget is to be submitted, the Governor shall submit to the General Assembly two budgets, one for each of the ensuing fiscal years. Each budget shall contain a complete plan for proposed expenditures, and estimated revenues for the particular fiscal year to which it relates, and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of such year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing:

1. The revenues and expenditures for each of the two fiscal years next preceding;

2. The current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State;

3. The debts and funds of the State;

4. An estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of each of the fiscal years covered by the two budgets above provided;

5. Any explanation the Governor may desire to make as to the important features of any budget, and any suggestions as to methods for the reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

Second: Each budget shall be divided into two parts, and the first shall be designated Governmental Appropriations, and shall embrace an itemized estimate of the appropriations:

1. For the General Assembly as certified to the Governor in the matter hereinafter provided;

2. For the Executive Department;

3. For the Judiciary Department as certified to the Governor by the Auditor of State;

4. To pay and discharge the principal and interest of any debt of the State of Indiana created in conformity with the Constitution and all laws enacted in pursuance thereof;

5. For the salaries payable by the State under the Constitution and laws of the State;

6. For the aid of public schools or higher institutions of learning in conformity with the Constitution and the laws of the State;

7. For such other purposes as are set forth in the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof.

Third: The second part shall be designated General Appropriations and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Governor shall deliver to the presiding officer of each House the budgets and a bill for all the proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each House shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the budget bill. The Governor may, before final action thereon by the General Assembly, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight, or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the General Assembly, by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officer of each House; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as a modification of or substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The General Assembly shall not amend the budget bill so as to affect any lawful obligation of the State contracted in pursuance of any provision of the Constitution or laws enacted in pursuance thereof, or so as to create a deficit, but may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the General Assembly, and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but, except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein: Provided, however, that the salary or compensation of any public officer shall be increased or diminished during his term of office.

Fourth: The Governor and such representatives of the executive department, boards, officers and commissions of the State expending or applying for State's money as have been designated by the Governor for this purpose, shall have the right, and when requested by either House of the General Assembly or any duly authorized committee of either House, it shall be their duty, to appear and be heard with respect to any budget bill during the consideration thereof and to answer inquiries relative thereto.

SUB-SECTION C.

Neither House shall consider other appropriations until the budget bill has been finally acted upon by both Houses, and no such other appropriations shall be valid except in accordance with the provisions following:

1. Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose therein stated and called herein a supplementary appropriation bill;

2. Each supplementary appropriation bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax, direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said bill, unless it appears from such budget that there is sufficient revenue available;

3. No supplementary appropriation bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each House by a vote of the majority of all the members elected to each House and yeas and nays recorded on its final passage;

4. Each supplementary appropriation bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in section fourteen of article five of the Constitution and thereafter all provisions of said section shall apply.

Nothing in the amendment shall be construed as preventing the General Assembly from passing at any time, in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-five (25) of article four (IV) of the Constitution, and subject to the Governor's power of approval as provided in section fourteen (14) of article five (V) of the Constitution, an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of Indiana within the protection of section ten (10), article one (I), of the Constitution of the United States.

SUB-SECTION D.

First: If the budget bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the General Assembly three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such bills; but no other matter than such bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof. Members of the General Assembly shall serve without pay during said extended session.

Second: The Governor, for the purpose of making up his budget, shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper state officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative officers, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and institutions applying for state monies and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such time as he shall direct. The estimates for the legislative department, certified by the presiding officer of each House, of the judiciary, as certified by the auditor of State, and for the public schools or higher institutions of learning as certified by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction or the administrative head of such institution shall be transmitted to the Governor in such form and at such time as he shall direct and shall be included in the budget. The Governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance on such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and all institutions applying for state moneys. After such public hearings, he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third: The General Assembly may, from time to time, enact such laws not inconsistent with this section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth: In the event of an inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the constitution, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the Governor from calling a special session of the Legislature as provided by section nine (9) of article four (IV), or as preventing the General Assembly at such special sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the bill or of any other item of such bill or bills.

Senate Motion.

Senator Duffey offered the following motion:

MR. PRESIDENT:

I move the following:

Whereas, There has been long and serious delay on the part of this General Assembly in enacting a law to take out of our schools the German language and the German propaganda that has been fostered, aided and abetted by the discrimination and favoritism shown the language of the most brutal and treacherous nation on the face of the earth; and

Whereas, We believe it is our patriotic duty to show our attitude in no uncertain manner and to do it in a way that cannot be misunderstood by even the stupid heads of Germany and the German sympathizers in this country, who believe in a short time they will be able again to fasten their hold on our country and its educational system; and

Whereas, Control of American schools through selection of German sympathizers as school authorities and the teaching of the German tongue to our children by teachers often deeply saturated with a love and an admiration of the abominable so-called German Kultur has been the most frequently used and most effective way of endeavoring to spread disloyalty to our own ideals and institutions; therefore be it

Resolved, That this Senate does hereby instruct its Committee on Education and does hereby request the House of Representatives to instruct its own Committee on Education to take prompt steps—perhaps by joint authorships of the House and Senate bills—toward bringing the bills on this subject out of committee so as to permit this General Assembly to do its duty promptly, and to give the people of this State protection against the snake-like efforts of those traitors to America who should be shipped back over the seas with special traveling accommodations to the land where they belong.

Addresses were delivered by Senator Laney and Senator Kiper.

Senator Laney delivered the following address:

One hundred ten years ago today there was born in the woods of Hardin county, Kentucky, a babe, who like the Babe of Bethlehem, was destined to be a benefactor of mankind. This babe was destined to stand out on the pages of history, unique, grand and sublime; and with what majesty of control he climbed the dizzy heights! On the morning of April 15, 1865, came Death, who knocks with equal hand at the door of the cottage and the palace gate. Mourning prevailed throughout the land, and the countenances of all were shrouded in gloom.

This babe when developed into manhood, went forth throughout the country proclaiming the principles of freedom and liberty and humanity. Oh, what a chord of harmony in these words: A harmony which can never be placed on the printed page or fall from the lips of mortal man. A harmony sweeter than the unwritten music of the giant of the woods as it crashes down through the branches of the forest. A harmony sweeter than a silver trumpet note. A harmony heard from far beyond where the astral world fire grows dim by reason of distance. A harmony from far beyond where the meteor flutters and falls in the gulf of night. This, the greatest of men, was called upon to exercise the duties of the high office to which he had been elected at a time when darkness curtained the hills and the valleys of this fair land of ours,—at a time when the plow was soon to stand idle in the field of promise. When briers were soon to cumber the walls of the garden of beauty. When fathers were soon to be dying and mothers found weeping over them. At a time when the wife was soon to bind up the lacerated bosom of her husband. He was called to his high office at a time when the maiden was soon to be found drying the death damp from the brow of her lover. He was called at a time when the pious had begun to doubt the promises of the Almighty. It was at such a time as this that Abraham Lincoln assumed the control of this great government of ours. It was at such a time as this that he was the inspiring genius to engage in the liberation of 4,000,000 of human souls.

We look in vain for adequate provocation for Lincoln's separate powers. Whether it be statesman or orator, or diplomat, or commander, or wit or seer, the contemplation of his strength and triumph baffles our understanding. From such depths derived, to such heights ascending, his flight mocks the eye of reason. An untried country lawyer, he was thrust on the nation's helm mid such storm as never smote a people, the plain man of the prairies was called in a single night to responsibilities as great as ever placed on human.

Eternal wisdom marshals the great processions of the nations, working in perfect continuity through the ages, never halting, never abrupt, encompassing all events in its oversight, and ever affecting its will, though mortals may slumber in apathy or oppose with madness. Kings are lifted up or thrown down, nations come and go, republics flourish and wither, dynasties pass away like a tale that is told; but nothing is by chance, though men in ignorance of causes may think so. The deeds of time are governed, as well as judged, by the decrees of eternity. The caprice of fleeting existences bends to the immovable Omnipotence, which plants its foot on all the centuries, has neither change of purpose nor repose. Sometimes like a messenger through the thick darkness of night, it steps along its mysterious ways; but when the hour strikes for a people, or for mankind, to pass into a new form of being, unseen hands draw the bolts from the gates of futurity; an all-subduing influence prepares the minds of men for the coming revolution; those who plan resistance find themselves in conflict with the will of Providence rather than human devices; and all hearts and understandings, most of all the opinions and influences of the unwilling, are wonderfully attracted and compelled to bear forward the change, which becomes more an obedience to the law of universal nature than submission to the arbitrament of man.

Where Lincoln was, in whatever sphere he moved, the friendless had a friend, the fatherless a father, and the poor man, although unable to reward his kindness, found an advocate. It was when the rich oppressed the poor, when the powerful menaced the defenseless, when the truth was disregarded or the eternal principle of Justice violated; it was on these occasions that he exerted his strength, it was on these occasions that he soared so high and shone with a radiance so transcendent—I had almost said so heavenly—as filled those around him with awe and gave to him the force and authority of a prophet.

A patriot, whose integrity baffled the scrutiny of inquisition; whose manly virtue never shaped itself to circumstances; who, always great, always himself, stood amid the varying tides, firm like the rock which, far from land, lifts its majestic top above the waves and remains unshaken by the storms which agitate the ocean.

He was a friend who knew no guile; whose bosom was transparent and deep; in the bottom of whose heart was rooted every tender and sympathetic virtue; whose various worth opposing parties acknowledged while alive, and on whose tomb they unite with equal sympathy and grief, to heap their honors.

I see the picture of his life—a picture rendered awful by greatness and luminous by virtue; if upon these there be any shade, let the tear that pities human weakness fall; let the veil that covers human frailties rest.

He needs eulogy from no one. His life was above reproach. His achievements sublime. Why mourn for him? His epitaph is written in the grandest history of the ages. Before his tomb will reverently pass the processions of the centuries. Although he himself has passed away, his works on earth will never perish. No, as long as earthly works shall be remembered, when all other deeds shall be forgotten, the deeds of Abraham Lincoln will be conspicuous on the pages of history and enshrined on the hearts of humanity and engraved on the granite face of time. Lincoln, the man of heart and will and brain. He loved humanity. His life was spent in saving it.

Senator Kiper spoke as follows:

Mr. President and Members of the Senate—I am not given to making excuses or explanations, but in justification to myself and to those who will be compelled to listen to me, will say that I was surprised this morning when I was informed that I was to make a speech. I am not a public speaker and I certainly appreciate the kind words by the Senator who preceded me.

Today carries us beyond the confines of the Commonwealth of Indiana, the confines of our own beloved country, to the consideration of a mighty force which has to do with the shaping of the destiny of the world.

The history of our country reads like a romance. You may search the records of all history, and you will not find a people who have gone into the desert, the field and forest, and who within a period of three hundred years have carved a nation like unto ours, which at this hour is the wonder and amazement of the civilized world.

The blood of every nation flows in the veins of the American people. A most remarkable thing, which emphasizes the efficiency of our Government, is that notwithstanding they have come to us from every land and clime, bringing to us their notions of government, their ideas of religion, their customs and traditions, yet out of it has been constructed a type of citizenship upon whom rests the responsibility of preserving a civilization that 4,000 years has constructed.

You, who are familiar with ancient history, recall that civilization began in the dim ages on the Euphrates and Tigris in Mesopotamia and Chaldea. There a great nation was builded and the people of the earth are now materializing some of these ideals. I wish to emphasize this fact upon your mind, that ever since the birth of civilization the trend of human progress has been toward the eternal west—the setting sun. The people of Mesopotamia became subservient to emperors, kings and potentates, and as has been the experience of all people, whose liberties have been destroyed by the power of despots, Chaldea and Mesopotamia passed into history. But in all time and all ages it seems that there have been provided sons of glory who have stood upon the mountain tops and beckoned humanity onward.

Civilization took its course into Egypt where another great nation was builded; and they were builders, for we have monuments of their antiquity which speak to us of their glory and greatness. But for the same reason that Chaldea and Mesopotamia passed into history, the liberties of the common people of Egypt were burned and withered by autocratic power, and Egypt belongs to the past.

Again civilization went over the waters into Greece to Italy, Spain, The Netherlands and across the English Channel into the British Isles, and in 1492, one of the great pioneers in history planted a torch of civilization in the Western Hemisphere. There is something remarkable about the discovery of America by Columbus. Columbus was an Italian boy whose heart was fired by the story of the world's first novelist, Marco Polo. Marco Polo wrote wonderful stories about the ancient land of Cathay, which we now call China. He said their buildings were constructed of the finest Parian marble; their minarets and domes were decorated by gems from the mountain and the ocean; the valleys and streams were spanned by bridges of purest white, and gold was so abundant that it lay in the streets and might be had for the simple carrying away. Columbus undertook to find passage to this land of dreams, and now we see the hand of destiny playing its part in shaping the American Republic, for the great responsibility of this epochal hour in history. For instead of directing the ships of Columbus to the ancient land of Cathay, they were directed toward the Western Hemisphere—a land, not only rich in silver and gold, but a land of golden opportunities where the peoples of the earth might find an asylum from the oppression of despots and kings and materialize into a government their highest ideals of life. Out of this blending of the best and greatest of all the earth, and from this melting pot of humanity was flung the man superb, the great Lincoln, whom we meet to honor and whose memory we cherish.

Lincoln was the embodiment of the spirit of his day; the typifying of the constructive influences which builded a new order of social and political life.

Here we have an example of the operation of American ideals and opportunity in the construction of character. Lincoln materialized the great forces at work in American life and builded from them a personality that is destined to influence all mankind. The world has received a mighty impulse from the life and character of Lincoln. His high conception of the duties of citizenship has given to our country a clear perspective of national purpose and responsibility. His grasp of universal questions affecting humanity at large filled the people with wonder and amazement.

The destiny of the nations of the earth is now being shaped by the humanitarian ideals which spring from the soul of this man Lincoln, the mightiest of the mighty dead.

The greatest purpose was to preserve the Union. He saw in process of development the mighty nation we now have. He visioned its future achievements in the interest of all humanity and saw our country the preserver and protector of a civilization which has been builded through 4,000 years of weary struggle and strife. For this, Lincoln lived, fought and died.

The character of this great and good American stands out in all its sublimity, silhouetted against the sky of the centuries, because he gave to us the eternal principles that man is entitled to stand erect, with his face turned heavenward, and live his life in freedom, dictated by his conscience alone.

I close with a sentiment inspired by the nobility of character and lofty patriotism of this immortal to whose memory we would pay the tenderest and enduring tribute:

I believe in my country.

I believe in its institutions—that they are builded on principles of justice and liberty.

I believe in the loyalty of its citizens—and their patriotism is unselfish and sincere.

I believe in the homes and firesides—that in and around them are formed the policies of the Nation and the high ideals of the Republic.

I believe in the character of manhood and womanhood—that in them we behold the greatest and best of the race.

I believe in its toilers whether in office, shop or field—and their songs of labor are paeans of the glory of the Nation.

I believe in its greatness—that it is the hope and guide for all the nations of the earth.

I revere its past—for it holds in sacred keeping the memory of the great and good who gave up life and fortune that happiness might come to us.

I believe in its future—that through its power and high respect for human rights the world will cease its war and peace will come to all mankind.

I love its flag—for in its fluttering folds I read the record of greatness achieved and victory won, and I pledge anew my life and means to keep its colors gleaming in the sunlight.

A concurrent resolution authorizing and empowering the Governor of the State of Indiana to enter into and carry to final consummation negotiations with the Federal Authorities and the Board of Park Commissioners of the City of Indianapolis, and all other public authorities who may be necessarily involved or interested, for the purpose of having removed from the old site of Greenlawn Cemetery in the city of Indianapolis, to some other site on state lands now used for park purposes in the city of Indianapolis, the monument now standing on said Greenlawn Cemetery site, which was erected by the Federal Government and dedicated to the memory of the Confederate soldiers who died in prison camps in the vicinity of Indianapolis during the Civil War.

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, There is now standing in our capital city a monument erected by our Federal Government, and dedicated to the memory of the sixteen hundred and sixteen Confederate soldiers of the Civil War who died in the prison camps located at Indianapolis during that period; and the same is surrounded by factory sites and unsightly conditions where once was located the beautiful Greenlawn Cemetery; and,

Whereas, This monument was erected by our Federal Government as a public record of the names of those men who gave up their lives, faithfully believing that they served a just cause, however erroneous that belief may have been, and is a thing of beauty deserving more appropriate surroundings than are now accorded it; and,

Whereas, The Federal Government now annually expends the sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00) for the care of said monument, and such care could be given with less expense in one of our public parks located on state lands in the city of Indianapolis; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate of this General Assembly of the State of Indiana, the House of Representatives concurring;

Section 1. That the Governor of the State of Indiana is hereby empowered, authorized and directed to enter into negotiations with the Federal Government and authorities having in charge and control of said Confederate Soldiers' monument, and the Board of Park Commissioners of the city of Indianapolis, and all other public authorities who may be involved or necessarily interested, to the end that such arrangements may be made and agreements entered into as will secure the removal of said monument to some centrally located public park in the city of Indianapolis, now in the title of the State, under conditions which will secure its proper care and attention by the city authorities thereafter. Such removal, if the same be made, leaving said monument in good condition, to end the responsibility of the Federal Government in connection therewith.

Sec. 5. All such boards of commissioners in cases where such contracts were entered into prior to March 13, 1918, and where at the time of the letting of the contract, the township in question has exhausted its statutory powers to create an indebtedness, and under which no work has been performed, and the bonds issued to pay therefor have not been sold, shall have the power by agreement with the contractor, to cancel such contracts, and to release the contractor and the surety from the performance thereof, in which event such board shall rescind its proceedings in relation to the improvement of such highway from and after the holding of the election as provided by section 70 and section 71 and section 72 of said act, approved March 8, 1905, if there shall have been an election, or, if not, from and after the assessment of damages as provided by section 69 of this act, and thereafter shall give notice to bidders and otherwise proceed to relet such contract according to law.

The funds realized from the sale of such bonds shall be retained and deposited as public funds and held in such depositories and upon such terms as the law prescribed relative to the keeping of public funds, and particularly as prescribed by the act of March 9, 1907, entitled "An act concerning public funds, their deposit and safekeeping and the collection of interest thereon; creating boards of finance and defining their powers, duties and procedure, prescribing punishment for violations, prescribing when said act shall take effect and repealing laws in conflict," and by the statutes amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto.

Sec. 7. Whenever in any proceedings had under the provisions of this act, the board of commissioners of any county shall have made an award of relief to any petitioner from further performance of the contract, or whenever such board shall have relet any contract for the grading, draining and paving of a highway, and the funds realized from the sale of the bonds authorized by the original proceedings for the improvement of such highway shall not be sufficient to pay for the cost of such contract when relet, such board of commissioners, for the purpose of raising money to meet such deficiency shall issue and sell additional bonds of the county in an aggregate sum equal to the deficiency, payable within five years, in the same manner, with interest at the same rate and out of funds raised by the same process as in the case of other bonds issued in the original proceeding for the improvement of such highway.

Senator Duffey, chairman of the Washington Memorial Committee, offered the following Senate resolution:

MR. PRESIDENT:

We offer the following resolution and move its adoption:

One hundred eighty-seven years ago there was ushered into existence a boy. At that period who would have prophesied the wonder career that lay before him? The first stages of this boy's life are well worth intense study. His childhood was short, his youth served merely as a training school for his future career. At the age of twelve he was left fatherless. At fifteen his scholastic education was finished. As a youth he showed the same rectitude and virtue that in later years made him turn his back on the vain glitter of a throne—refuse a crown held out to him—strive only for the prosperity and freedom of his country. In looking at this boy after he had attained his manhood, we see in him a statesman the purest, if not the most dazzling human radiations. This phase is not confined to any one period, but stretches over his entire career. During his early manhood he was a member of the council of his State and later on he took a leading part in the great events making the birth-throes of a nation, and finally was unanimously elected President of the Republic chiefly because of his leadership and patriotism.

His star ever shines with the same calm, clear and unfailing brilliancy. The boy lies in the tomb at Mount Vernon, beloved by all, with his birthday commemorated in every hamlet of this wide land. Where will you find his equal?

Unhappy that man whose future fame rests in cold marble. The pyramids of Egypt were built in the memory of whom? This boy, on the other hand, lies deeply buried and embedded in the hearts of his countrymen. His monument is a great nation stretching from ocean to ocean.

We have to speak in the name of a mourning nation before a world filled with emotional sympathy. Who was this boy—who after more than a century holds precisely the same place in the hearts of the American people as when he was their executive? Who was this boy, to whom all nations paid a tribute of respect such as no material power can command? This question is being answered now. The features of the living are obscured by the mists of controversy. In its shadows we perceive but the flickering lamplight of transient opinion. But there comes the sharp wind of death. It dispels the mist, it blows out the lights. The sun of history is rising. In the clearness of that night-born day, we begin to see who this boy was. It was George Washington. Behold this country before his hand was put to the wheel of her destinies. She was not a nation. She was not independent. She was not free. She was not a member of the great sisterhood of nations. In fact, we see before us a shapeless multitude torn by taxation and oppression. She was secluded from the great currents and noble conceptions of the civilized world, having no independent government of her own, made subservient to a foreign power, uncertain even in its national self-consciousness, which now and then flashed lightning like in the patriotic outbursts of individuals, but had no firm hold on the masses, their power not going beyond the privilege of issuing impotent complaints—a picture indeed of decay and dissolution. And now, behold the present greatness of our country. Although we have not yet fulfilled our destiny, we are a great, free nation, strong in our unity and equality of citizens. In the recognized power of our representation, the greatest and most worthy sister of the greatest civilized nations. We govern ourselves in the spirit of justice, liberty, freedom and progress. No aim is too high for our legitimate ambitions and undoubted possibilities. A picture of sublime hope and self-confidence. Between these two pictures of a nation, stands a man whose name is George Washington. Behold and compare: the difference between them says who he was. He found the former and established the latter. He was the founder of our nation. He was the first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

He made secure our independence and our moral connections with our sister nations. He made our country an active agent in the great work of human progress. He linked her destinies to the highest aspirations of our kind and laid her future on foundations of indestructible strength. His name is the symbol of our nation's worth to the world, of her racial individuality and of her task in the universal history. There lies the secret of the veneration he encounters throughout the world and of the gratitude and enthusiastic love it will never cease to bring forth from the hearts of our people.

the board of commissioners; the commissioners shall order the same to be paid in such amounts and such times as they may agree, but no payment shall be made by the commissioners for more than eighty per cent (80%) of the engineer's estimate of the work done by any contractor, nor shall the whole amount of any contract be paid until the road shall have been received as complete by the board of commissioners. All funds shall be kept in the public depositories of the county and the interest derived from the same shall be, from time to time, added to the fund.

Whereas, There is in existence and flowing through Marion County a distance of practically ten miles, an open waterway, commonly called the Canal, from its inlet at White River at Broad Ripple to the outlet into White River at the junction of said river at Washington Street; and

Whereas, Said canal was constructed by public funds; and

Whereas, A large portion of said distance of ten miles passes through, along, over and upon the streets of the city of Indianapolis, within the corporate limits thereof; and

Whereas, Said canal or waterway has become a menace to life and health and is contaminated by waste material, putrid matter, refuse from the street and decaying bodies of human beings and lower animals; and

Whereas, Said canal is and has been continuously for a number of years last past, utilized and used without right by the Indianapolis Water Company in supplying the citizens of Indianapolis with drinking water therefrom, through its mains and equipment for supplying such water, and is thereby a menace to public health to the detriment and damage of life and public health in the city of Indianapolis and among said citizens; and

Whereas, Heretofore, pending the 1917 session of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, said Indianapolis Water Company by its managing officer, Mr. Kirk, agreed with the chairman of your committee that if he, the said chairman, would not introduce a certain bill which he, the said chairman, had then and there prepared, and was proposing to introduce at said session of said General Assembly, to require said canal to be enclosed in such manner as to render the contamination thereof in the manner and form aforesaid impossible from the outlet of said canal at White River and Washington Street in Indianapolis, Indiana, to the north edge of North street in said city, said Water Company would properly cover and enclose same to prevent such contamination before the convening of this session and term of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana; and

Whereas, Your committee in reliance upon said agreement refrained from introducing said bill at said session of said General Assembly; and

Whereas, It is now apparent from the permanent structures that have been constructed by said Water Company in said canal since said agreement was entered into, that said Water Company has no intention or purpose to carry out its said agreement, or to enclose said canal between said points; and

Whereas, Said company has wholly failed and neglected to carry out said agreement; and

Whereas, Said canal between said points has been permitted by said Water Company to be and remain open, subject to contamination as aforesaid, and to be and remain contaminated as aforesaid; and

Whereas, Your committee represents that the title to said canal is and has been continuously since the construction thereof in the State of Indiana; and

Whereas, Said canal is now and has been during all said time the property of the State of Indiana; and

Whereas, Said Water Company is, without right, using and utilizing same to the exclusion of the public rights therein, without compensation to the State therefor;

Now Therefore be it Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, by the Senate of the State of Indiana, the House of Representatives concurring, that the Attorney-General of the State of Indiana be and is hereby ordered, directed and authorized to take all necessary steps to secure the immediate possession of and to quiet the title to said canal through its entire length in the State of Indiana, and to protect and secure to the State of Indiana all its rights in the premises, and to institute all suits and proceedings of every kind and character necessary to any thereof, and to employ counsel if deemed necessary by him so to do, to aid and assist him in connection with any and all thereof and to pay for said services out of the funds appropriated to his office and available therefor and to make due and full report thereof of all his proceedings in the premises to the next session of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana.

Which resolution was read in full and ordered printed.

Concurrent Resolution No. 9.

A resolution providing for the memorializing of the Congress of the United States of America to the end that a sum of money equal to six months' pay be given to all discharged soldiers, sailors and marines in addition to such sum as may be yet due them for service rendered prior to their discharge from the World War.

Preamble.

Whereas, In the reconstruction period of our national history that now confronts us following the end of the World War with Germany, we must realize that the returned soldiers, sailors and marines from overseas, as well as those who performed their full duty in the preparation of camps at home, are again coming among us to take up their positions as members of our civic communities; and

Whereas, It is to these men we must look for active support of a material nature in the suppression of the numerous anti-American and Bolshevik propaganda that seems to be spreading over our respective States to the peril of organized government and the peaceful commonwealths; and

Whereas, It is represented, apparently without contradiction, that many of these returned to their homes without full payment of the financial compensation provided by law for active service in field and camp in the various branches of our army and navy in which they have served, and must wait for full payment until some future time; now, therefore,

Be it Resolved by the Senate of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That a memorial be sent from and by this General Assembly to the Congress of the United States requesting that our Federal Government take such action, through its War Department and its Congress, as will provide for and deliver to all discharged soldiers, sailors and marines of the above named war period, a sum of money equal to six (6) months' pay for the rank and service occupied by each of them respectively at the time of their discharge. All to the end that these brave men be afforded a certainty of living expenses till employment be assured; and further, that they may be accorded ample facilities for holding themselves in readiness to again serve their country in stamping out Bolshevism and kindred movements if the necessity therefor be presented. And of this resolution to the United States Senate, the House of Representatives of the United States Congress, to the several members of each of those bodies representing the State of Indiana therein, and to the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, and the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy.

HARRY E. NEGLEY, Senator.

Concurrent Resolution No. 10.

Senator English offered the following Concurrent Resolution No. 10, entitled:

A concurrent resolution favoring action by the National Government in behalf of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the late war now returning to civil life.

Whereas, The necessity of war called upon millions of workmen and other employes to leave their positions and employment in industry and commerce to defend the nation's flag in the world conflict in behalf of Democracy and humanity; and

Whereas, These defenders of the flag are now returning to their homes and it would be manifestly unjust and ungrateful, after having removed these workers from their employment in industry and placed them in the military or naval service of the country, for the Government to discharge them from that service without making adequate provisions to assist them in procuring employment and to provide for their support until employment is secured, or to assist in their support during the period of temporary or partial employment; therefore

Be it Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring, That the General Assembly of the State of Indiana favors such equitable action by the National Government as will in some practical and just way, for six months following discharge or some other reasonable period, make up to the deserving and honorably discharged soldiers and sailors now returning to civil life, whose necessities require it, for the difference, where any exists, in wages or salary received at the time of entering the Government service and the wages and salary received after return to civil life.

Be it Further Resolved, That the Secretary of State of the State of Indiana be directed to send a certified copy of these resolutions to each Senator and Representative in the National Congress from the State of Indiana.

March 4, 1919.

Which motion prevailed.

SENATOR JAMES:

Gentlemen of the Senate—During the session of 1917, I was appointed on a committee—I believe known as a Canal Committee. Some day during that session, of more than one day, we met with a gentleman by the name of Kirk—a gentleman with some official capacity of the Water Works Company here. The greatest interest I had in that committee when the discussion began was the title the State of Indiana might have in this property. There was a question which arose in regard to the title. Having met one day in the southwest corner of the Senate Chamber, at that time this gentleman agreed in my presence and in the presence of Senator Laney, Senator McCray being present—I think Senator Simmons was present—that if this bill in which Senator McCray was interested, in which they were very much interested—if it was pushed no further that they would cover this canal or put it underground from Washington Street to North Street; how far that is, I do not know. I know that at that time I traveled over that distance and it was not covered, and have traveled over the same route this time and that the canal is still open over the same place. I said I would agree to that provided the title claimed by the State is not waived. The agreement was made and nothing further was done with it.

SENATOR MCCRAY:

Mr. President—I now ask Senator Laney to answer the same.

SENATOR LANEY:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate—I was appointed a member of a certain committee during the session of 1917 which had to do with investigation of this canal, and after having made an investigation, or rather inspection or partial inspection, the committee was called together within this chamber, at which time I had the pleasure of being introduced to a gentleman, who was represented to me as being Mr. Kirk, who had to do with this water works system. I believe I would recognize this man if he was in this room. At this meeting above referred to this statement or promise was made. There was a bill already prepared to be introduced. This gentleman introduced to me said that he would sewer or cover this canal from Washington Street to North Street, a distance of about one mile. I do not know where North Street is. As usual, I thought I was on the side of the common people, although this did not appeal to me. I think yet that if the title is vested in the State of Indiana it should so remain. I am not particularly interested in corporation interests, but do try to be on the side of the people. The proposition did not meet with my approval; but, not dissenting, an agreement was made that if this bill was not passed the canal would be sewered or covered between these two points.

The question being, Shall the Senate concur in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 7?

The roll was called.

Those voting in the affirmative were:

Senators Beardsley, Dobyns, Dorell, Douglass, Elsner, Hogston, Humphreys, James, Kiper, Kolsem, Laney, McConaha, McCray, McCullough, McKinley, Meeker, Nejd, Self, Signs, Strode, Van Auker. Total 21.

Whereas, The world has just emerged from a deluge of human blood; and

Whereas, The free nations of the earth have triumphed over autocracy as the result of a struggle lasting four years, costing nearly 8,000,000 human lives and nearly two hundred billion dollars; and

Whereas, Many of the leading thinkers of the foremost civilized nations are of the opinion that if the world is to be spared the suffering, sorrow and expense of future wars, something approaching unity in thought and feeling must be accomplished; and

Whereas, Both the leaders of other nations and of our own, without regard to party, are of the opinion that the best means of effecting such a unity of interest is through a league of nations which shall have control of international affairs without in any way invading the internal affairs or rights of individual nations; therefore

Be it Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That it is the sentiment of this body that the Congress of the United States should lend its support to the formation of a league of nations, and

MR. PRESIDENT:

Your duties as presiding officer of the Senate have been many and arduous. Your position carries with it great and grave responsibilities. Some one has said that responsibilities gravitate to those who are able to bear them and power comes to those who know how. We take pleasure in saying that you have performed your duties well and borne your responsibilities with dignity and courage, meriting the esteem of all with whom your high position has brought you in contact. One, among many, of the outstanding features of your term as presiding officer of the present session of the State Senate is the kind consideration you have accorded us as employees of the Senate under your control and direction. At all times you have displayed a congenial, considerate and impartial disposition towards us and thereby made the performance of our duties a pleasure rather than a task. You have at all times demonstrated your broadness of mind and good intention toward us, for which we are sincerely grateful.

In token of the high esteem in which we hold you and the high regard which your conduct has engendered, we beg to be allowed to present to you this piece, trusting that as it marks the fleeting moments your memory of our pleasant association may grow sweeter and become as enduring as time.

We desire to say also that the kind and congenial spirit of Mrs. Bush toward us has made our association pleasant and agreeable and we hold her in high esteem because of her womanly qualities and cheerful disposition.

By changing the period at the end of line 336, section 2, to a colon and adding the following: "Provided that if a bill entitled A bill for an act entitled an act providing for the establishment and maintenance of free employment service in Indiana, creating a commission, prescribing its authority, etc., being Senate Bill No. 306, becomes a law, any unused balance of this appropriation shall revert to the general fund."

29. By adding after the word "cent," in line 402, the following: "There is hereby appropriated and placed at the disposition of the Governor of the State the sum of forty-three thousand dollars to pay for the improvement of streets in the city of Indianapolis upon which property in the name of the State abuts as follows: Washington street, upon which the Central Insane Hospital abuts; Capitol avenue, Senate avenue, Washington street and Ohio street, upon which the State Capitol abuts; Senate avenue and Market street, upon which the Indiana School of Medicine abuts; Michigan street, upon which the Long Hospital abuts; North street, upon which the Blind Asylum abuts; Randolph street, upon which the Indiana Woman's Prison abuts, to be available at any time after July 1, 1919, to pay for any such street improvement when actually completed.

30. By striking out of section 2, lines 420, 421 and 422 to and including the word "dollars," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Emergency and contingent fund" for the purpose of purchasing lands and erecting buildings or for any purpose necessary for the extension of the activities, the improvement of, or for the employment of labor in any of the State's educational, penal or benevolent institutions the sum of one million dollars."

31. On page fifteen, line four hundred sixty-seven, after the word "Reformatory," change the period to a comma and add: "the Indiana State Farm and the Indiana State Prison."

In case it is apparent or likely in the opinion of such officials that lower prices will prevail at a later period, it is suggested that contracts be made in such manner that the State may get the benefit of such prices as may prevail.

During the so-called readjustment period a surplus of workers may come about, and it is the intent of this resolution that the State of Indiana may not add to the uncertainty of employment, but rather that the State shall go ahead with its work and give employment to labor, taking care, however, to curtail commitments to prices for future delivery of goods, materials, and supplies in a manner that would suggest itself to a prudent business man.

Senator McCray, chairman of Visiting Committee to League of Nations, submitted the following report:

MR. PRESIDENT:

Your committee, appointed to the Conference of the League of Nations, at Chicago, Illinois, on February 10-13, 1919, hereby submit the following for your consideration:

The pride of philosophy may teach that every man may live unto himself, but as men turn instinctively to each other, such a state is impossible. Hence tribes were formed and nations came into being. Out of necessity grew a spirit of comity and a crude code of international law was established, culminating in a fixed system of diplomacy formulating treaties through consuls and ambassadors, which as yet are binding only upon the conscience of the contracting parties and without any civil power to coerce obedience. It was Germany's wanton disregard of her solemn treaty covenants that threw civilization, and the fate of mankind itself into the balance, in a war limited only in ferocity by the achievements of man in the science of destruction.

To prevent a recurrence of this world-wide tragedy, it is now proposed to establish a league of nations, the prize object of which is to make war on war; to supplant competition by co-operation; to build upon plans of construction rather than destruction; to establish an international court to whose arbitrament all disputes between nations must be submitted, and to whose decrees all must yield, and thus prevent nations from wantonly warring upon or destroying their less powerful neighbors.

Under the rules of this league, through the concurrence of the great powers, the integrity of weak nations shall be preserved and their right of self-determination and self-control guaranteed and protected that they may no longer tempt the cupidity of aggressive powers; that intercourse among nations shall not be based upon hatred, aggression or national greed, but shall be predicated upon the law of good will toward men; that the battle shall no longer be to the strong or the race to the swift, and that the doctrine of the survival of the fittest shall not prevail in the destiny of the race.

The functions of the league are to be based upon persuasion, conciliation, economic pressure, and finally military coercion. This tribunal shall have power to codify all international laws, make necessary rules and regulations for the performance of its exalted trust, hear evidence, and enter decrees which shall be enforced by placing the combined strength of the leading powers at its disposal. In dealing with a recalcitrant nation the league will first resort to mediation and conciliation, invoking the least force necessary to compel obedience. Should this prove ineffectual, economic pressure will be employed, visiting upon the offending power complete social, political and commercial ostracism. As a last resort the combined military power of the league will be invoked to compel obedience. It is claimed that the league will thereby be enabled to protect itself and all weaker nations, and command the peace of the world, as it would be extremely hazardous for a single nation to wage war under conditions that must result in national annihilation.

Nations that are representative in fact as well as in form are alone eligible to membership in the league; and until she presents irrefutable evidence that her people have renounced the policy of militarism, secured indemnities and modernized her government, Germany is declared to be ineligible to membership.

We recognize the imperative necessity of some powerful and permanent agency to guarantee security and peace. Science has attained such a degree of efficiency as to bring the nations face to face with each other, and with this the power to destroy. The public mind of the world is in a state of agitation; deep distress shadows many lands and the murmur of discontent is heard on every hand. The hour of reconstruction will call for the highest purposes and our best energies. It will sorely tax the statesmanship of the world. We must move with care and caution, with courage and discretion, for the tenures of the world's rulers are brief and precarious. Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando, representing the great nations of Britain, France and Italy, respectively, may be overthrown at any moment by lawful and peaceful means, and President Wilson himself has but two brief years as a certain tenure. Hence the importance of establishing the individual government of ruling powers that internal disturbances may not imperil the safety of the world.

New nations have sprung into being. Poland must be established. Finland, Lithuania, Czechs-Slovakia, Jugo-Slovakia, Albania, Arabia, and far off Armenia are calling for help as the children of this new birth of nations. They must be assisted, protected and their integrity guaranteed. Romania and Servia must be restored and re-established. Belgium must be indemnified, and France must come into possession of her own. The Turk must withdraw from Europe, and the Dardenelles must be internationalized under the supervision of the Anglo-Saxon race.

Such conditions impose an interdependence upon peoples—making the existence of the race dependent upon a peaceful co-operation of governments. We are already, in some measure, practicing internationalism by our interlacing telegraph cables, universal application of the wireless system, the mingling and intercourse among merchant ships of all nations, international boards of trade and commercial exchanges, and the settlement of international questions throughout the channels of diplomacy. Under the proposed plan a super state is not to be created by which any portion of a nation's sovereignty is to be absorbed, but international duty, now resting solely upon treaties—voluntary agreements—is to be given potency and virility by transferring this element of diplomacy from the field of discretion to the realm of coercion. It is urged that we have done much individually to relieve the suffering of humanity, we should render a more efficient service by co-operation with other nations.

Truly a great task lies before us, and we must approach the solution of these problems with a sublime faith in the final triumph of right. To this and for this purpose is born the league of nations, a child of hope—that the world may be freed from war, and its friends claim that through this international agency, this co-operation, the great purpose can be accomplished; that this league foreshadows the reign of peace on earth and good will toward man.

As to whether this is but an Utopian dream of a new birth in the era of men remains to be seen. Statesmen and laymen alike are endeavoring to chrystallize sentiment in support of this sublime conception, this stupendous plan, to the end that out of the chaotic conditions of Europe and Asia a permanent peace may arise, and a co-ordination of forces with sufficient vigor and power to compel the submission of all international disputes to the arbitrament of an international court, and that this tribunal of peace shall supplant the gauge of battle. This is the supreme desire, the sublime motive by which the founders of the league of nations have been inspired.

While this sublime movement is yet in its incipency, the great minds of the world are already moving upon diverging planes. It is the great question of the hour. Universal in its scope, it engages alike the mind of the most learned statesman and the humble peasant in his cabin; it taxes the powers of the philosopher and appeals with equal force to the hope of the oppressed.

Your committee represents that the great meeting at Chicago launched the foregoing principles with great force, and in a manner to command our most profound consideration, and we commend to this honorable body and to our fellow citizens in general a careful study of this great movement, this departure in statesmanship that is engrossing the energies of the thinkers of the world, and in some measure at least is moulding the destiny of the race.
